STATE ADOPTS TAX AMENDMENT

PLAN CARRIES OHIO
BY LARGE MAJORITY
IN TUESDAY VOTING

Expect Margin May Be
200,000 Votes When
Tabulated

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—The proposed tax amendment to the Ohio constitution was approved by an overwhelming majority by the voters of this state at the election yesterday, it became definitely known shortly before seven o'clock this morning when 7,989 of the 9,002 precincts had reported to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

The vote at that time was: for the amendment, 600,800; against the amendment, 443,069.

Most of the precincts which have not as yet reported are in rural districts, it was learned. State officials estimated the 151,000 majority for the amendment would swell to at least 200,000 when the final tabulation will have been completed.

By passing favorably on the amendment, Ohio voters have agreed to abandon the "uniform tax rule," which has been a part of the state constitution for eighty years.

A huge burden has been thrown onto the shoulders of the legislature which will meet in 1931.

Briefly, the amendment provides:

1.—That the state legislature, after January 1, 1931, will have the power to classify types of property other than real estate and its improvements for taxation at different rates, provided that all real estate and its improvements is taxed uniformly.

2.—That no property shall be taxed for more than one and a half per cent of its true value in money except by vote of the taxing district.

The expected 200,000 majority is a large one in face of the generally light vote throughout the state. It is a momentous victory for the all-Ohio Tax League.

That organization was formed immediately after the last state legislature had passed a resolution to submit the tax amendment to the people. It consists of many large and influential groups, including the following:

Ohio Farm Bureau Federation; Ohio Building Association League; Ohio State Grange; Ohio State Association of Real Estate Boards; Ohio Bankers Association; Mortgage Association of Ohio; Ohio Newspaper Association; Ohio Manufacturers Association; Motion Picture Theater Owners of Ohio; Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants; Ohio Hotels Association and the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

SENATE IS WASTING TIME WITH TARIFF BILL BLEASE SAYS

Demands Action On Resolution For Adjournment

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Declaring the senate is wasting time on a tariff bill that will never become law, Senator Cole Blease (D) of South Carolina today promised to demand action on his resolution to shut the bill aside until after December 3, thus bringing the special session to an abrupt close.

The resolution apparently was foredoomed to overwhelming defeat if it reaches a vote, but it was received with sympathetic interest by the "old guard" Republicans who would rather have no tariff than one written by the Democratic Progressive Republican coalition.

The South Carolina senator's proposal coincides in large degree with the views expressed by such regular Republicans as Senators Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, and Edge (R) of New Jersey. Blease vehemently denied he introduced the resolution as a result of conferences with other senators.

Admitting the resolution in its present form cannot be forced to a vote, he promised to change it if necessary to bring it within the parliamentary rule demanding expression by the senate.

Meantime Sen. Smoot (R) of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, was doing his best to drive the senate forward to the laborious task of disposing of individual tariff items, peace negotiations were being carried forward and "old guard" Republicans were seeking support for an adjournment over the Thanksgiving weekend.

PLANE FALLS; 6 DIE

GERMAN PASSENGER AIR LINER CRASHES DURING HEAVY FOG

Only Two Escape Death As Plane Bursts Into
Flames; Both Injured; Relative Of Kaiser
Among Injured

CATERHAM, SURREY, Eng., Nov. 6.—Six persons met almost instant death today when a tri-motored German plane of the Lufthansa air lines crashed in flames in a heavy fog at Whitehill, near here.

The plane, a luxurious passenger liner, was bound from Amsterdam to Croydon, England, London terminus of the Continental Air Lines.

Eight persons, four passengers and four men comprising the crew, were in the plane. Only two escaped death.

One was a passenger, Lieut-Commander Glen Kidstone, millionaire British sportsman. The other was the assistant pilot of the plane, prince Eugene Von Schaumburg-Lippe, a relative of the former German Kaiser Wilhelm, who took up flying as a vocation when the overthrow of the German aristocracy deprived him of his wealth and position.

Commander Kidstone and the prince were seriously injured. Commander Kidstone suffered painful burns about the hands and face when the flames destroyed the wreckage of the giant craft.

The dead passengers apparently were all Englishmen, returning from the continent. Their names were Jones, Milne and Jaspak.

Few details of the crash have as yet been learned. The pilot apparently lost control while plunging through heavy rain and fog within a comparatively few miles of his destination.

The accident is one of the most serious ever sustained by a plane of the Lufthansa, which has thrown a network of air lines all over Europe.

The wrecked plane was an all-metal Junkers, similar to the monoplane Bremen in which Captain Herman Koell, the late Baron Von Huendel and Commander James Fitzmaurice of the Irish Free State air force made a successful east to west crossing of the Atlantic.

Prince Von Schaumburg-Lippe is a member of the family of the Princess Victoria Von Schaumburg-Lippe, 63-year old sister of the ex-Kaiser who recently instituted divorce proceedings against her husband, Alexandre Zoubkoff, Russian emigre. The princess' marriage to Zoubkoff, who is thirty years her junior, resulted in her complete alienation from the former imperial family.

WALKER ELECTED

JAMES J. WALKER
Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York City, regular Democratic candidate, was re-elected Tuesday by a huge majority over Congressman Fiorella La Guardia, his Republican opponent and over Norman Thomas, Socialist and Richard Enright, Independent.

MAYOR WALKER WINS SMASHING VICTORY AT NEW YORK POLLS

Tammany Plurality
About 500,000; Mayor
Pleased

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Mayor James J. Walker and Tammany Hall leaders were congratulated on all sides today on their smashing victory at the polls yesterday.

The young Democratic mayor, affectionately known the world over as "Jimmy," was re-elected by a plurality of 497,165 over Representative Fiorella H. La Guardia, Republican-Fusion candidate, final returns compiled this morning showed.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for mayor, finished third, polling a surprisingly heavy vote, and former Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, Square Deal party candidate, pulled up a very bad fourth.

The vote, with all of the 3,411 election districts counted was:

Walker, 497,165.
La Guardia, 368,384.
Thomas, 174,931.
Enright, 5,956.

It was a tremendous victory for Tammany. Not only did Walker go over with a bang, but with only one major exception the entire Democratic ticket was victorious. It was a landslide. Huge pluralities were rolled up by Controller Charles W. Berry and Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee as well as by the four Democratic borough presidents, Julius Miller of Manhattan, Henry Bruckner of the Bronx, James J. Byrne of Brooklyn and John A. Lynch of Richmond.

All Democratic judicial, all Democratic county candidates and all but a few Democratic candidates for the assembly and the Democratic candidates for the board of aldermen were elected.

The only successful Republican candidate for an important office to win was Borough President George U. Harvey of Queens.

One of the outstanding features of the election was the heavy Socialist vote cast by Thomas, the mayoralty candidate. He had conducted his campaign on a high plane, avoiding the personalities that were indulged in by La Guardia and Enright in their campaign against Walker. Thomas regarded his vote as a "moral victory" for the Socialist cause.

Mayor Walker's plurality greatly exceeded that given him four years ago when he won over Frank D.

POLLARD WINS

ANDREW HANINGER DIES IN HOSPITAL FROM LONG ILLNESS

Prominent Xenian
Called Wednesday Morning

Andrew Haninger, 63, prominent Xenian, died Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock at the Christian R. Holmes Hospital, in Cincinnati.

Death followed a long illness, resulting from complications. He became ill during the summer, but did not enter the hospital until seven weeks ago. Early this week it was planned to bring him to a home here, but he suffered a relapse and his physicians advised against his being moved.

Mr. Haninger was born in Xenia February 19, 1866, the son of Baptist and Helen Haninger, and spent practically all of his life in this city.

When a young man he learned the jewelry business as an employee of the store operated here by the late F. J. H. Schell, and later became a traveling salesman for a large New York wholesale jewelry firm. Still later he became associated with his brothers in the development of considerable copper mining interests in Arizona, and the Haninger brothers were prominent in the industry at Bisbee, with his brother George Haninger and his sister, Miss Minnie Haninger.

He was a part owner of the Night Hawk Leasing Co., a mining property at Bisbee, Arizona, at the time of his death.

Mr. Haninger never married but made his home here with his sister, Miss Minnie Haninger at 130 S. De Troit St., although they spent their winters, for many years, in Bisbee. He was a heavy stockholder in the Cincinnati Baseball Club, owners of the Cincinnati Reds, a National League team, and took considerable interest in the sport. For many years he accompanied the team on its Southern training trips in the Spring.

In recent years he became enthusiastic as a golfer and was prominently identified with the Xenia Country Club here. His interest in the club was invaluable to that institution and, in his various capacities, he was credited with much of its success. His activities there will be greatly missed by the organization and his death will be mourned widely by a host of Xenia friends.

Mr. Haninger is survived by his sister, Miss Minnie, his brother George, of El Paso, Texas, who, with Mrs. Haninger and their children, are now in Xenia, four nieces and one nephew. Two brothers preceded him in death, John Haninger having died fifteen years ago, while Harry Haninger died ten years ago.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed and will be announced later.

JIMMY CAN SMILE
NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—"Well," said Mayor Jimmy Walker today, "I guess I can wear my own clothes and smile when I please judging from the election returns."

The mayor had long been criticized by some for his breezy manner and the fact he always dressed to the minute.

DEMOCRATS GLAD AS RETURNS INDICATE SUCCESS IN VOTING

See Hope For Coming
Congressional Races
In Results

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Democrats in the capital who have not had much to crow about for the past year, were a pretty jubilant lot today as they surveyed the off-year election results.

While most of the contests yesterday were purely local in character, they nevertheless professed to discern a distinct "Democratic wind" in the balloting that augurs well for the congressional contests of next year.

Virginia's smashing return to the party fold was the high point of Democratic rejoicing.

Indications this morning were that Virginia has elected Dr. John Garland Pollard, a regular Democrat, to the governorship by the greatest majority ever given any candidate in the old dominion—this in the face of the heroic efforts made by the Republicans and anti-Smith Democrats to repeat and consolidate the Hoover victory in Virginia last year.

Analysis of the Virginia vote discloses that most of the Democrats who bolted Al Smith a year ago came back to the party fold yesterday, and this fact is considered by Democratic leaders as indicative of what may be expected throughout the South.

The Republicans, aided and abetted by the Anti-Smith league, of whom Bishop James Cannon, Jr., was the most prominent, made a real effort to hold Virginia. Bishop Cannon promoted the coalition between the Republicans and the bolting Democrats, selected Prof. W. Mosley Brown as the gubernatorial candidate, and bombarded the state with appeals to "stand fast" and further "repudiate Smithism and Raskobism."

The result was an overwhelming defeat for Bishop Cannon, and probably the greatest regular Democratic victory ever achieved in Virginia. The vote for Prof. Brown was just about the normal Republican vote of the state.

The Republicans sent considerable money into the Virginia contest without avail. The organization work was the most intensive any southern state has ever applied to the big test of whether Republican victories in the south last November.

APPROVE BONDS FOR HOSPITAL

BOLEN ELECTED TO COUNCIL; QUILTS JOB

WILMINGTON, O., Nov. 6.—Despite the fact that Coach C. W. ("Shifty") Bolen of Wilmington College announced that he had resigned that position to become affiliated with an insurance company in Columbus, the voters in the third ward here elected him to the city council.

Bolen has been coach at Wilmington since 1923. He was graduated from Ohio State University and played varsity end on the football team there for three years.

"T'WAS SWEET" SAYS JIMMY

"Wise Cracking" Mayor Returned To Office By
Huge Majority

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Jimmy Walker—the mayor with the smile and the hair-trigger wit—is in again.

His victory by 500,000 votes over Mayor Fiorella ("Fiery") La Guardia, Republican mayoralty candidate, today proved his popularity.

It was the largest plurality ever registered by a New York candidate for mayor. Walker's landslide triumph carried practically the entire Democratic ticket into office with him.

What did Jimmy think of it? "It is sweet," he declared. During the campaign his opponents called him the "wise-cracking mayor" and made sarcastic references to his dapper dress. His friends called him "America's best dressed mayor."

THREE OF FOUR BOND ISSUES IN COUNTY DEFEATED BY VOTERS

Beavercreek And Caesarcreek School Projects And
Spring Valley Flood Control Proposal
Lose At Polls.

Three of the four bond issues aggregating $238,120 voted upon in Greene County at Tuesday's election were defeated.

Failure of a proposed issue of $155,000 to finance construction of a new consolidated high school building in Beavercreek Twp. Rural School District to receive the necessary 55 per cent of the votes cast on the proposal creates a complicated situation in that school district. The issue received a majority of the votes cast, 330 to 322, but not 55 per cent and consequently failed to carry by twelve votes.

Indications are that if Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education carries out an ultimatum made before the election, the high school charter will be taken away from the township at the close of the present school year. In that event it would be necessary to transport about 125 high school pupils to the nearest high school in some adjoining township.

Director Clifton had notified the township school board that its high school recognition would be refused unless improved educational facilities for the children were provided. If the bond issue had been approved, the present high school building which does not measure up to present-day requirements of the state educational department, in addition to thirteen one-room schools in the district, would have been abandoned.

Another bond issue for $55,000 to erect an addition to the present Caesarcreek Twp. High School also received a majority of the votes cast on the proposition but not the needed 55 per cent and also lost. The majority of eight votes was insufficient, the vote being 141 in favor of and 133 against the issue.

Failure of this issue to carry did not come altogether as a surprise in view of strong sentiment in the school district against the proposal. State Director Clifton had also recommended to the school board that regardless of whether the issue was approved, action on the project should be suspended until the state department has had an opportunity to make a survey of the situation.

Because the district has a small tax rate it was feared the extra expense would boost the tax rate too high and prove burdensome to the taxpayers. Centralization of schools will also result eventually in the township, it is said.

The third bond issue to be turned down Tuesday was one for $21,120, authorized by the Spring Valley village council to construct and improve levees, drains, ditches and water courses and provide flood protection for the town. The proposition lost by seventy-five votes, the vote being 125 against the plan and only fifty favoring it.

The only bond issue to receive a favorable vote was that at Fairfield village, where voters approved by a vote of 80 to 140 a $7,000 issue to construct a fire engine house and purchase fire-fighting apparatus.

FISHER AND BINDER ALSO VICTORIOUS; SMITH NAMED JUDGE

Tax Amendment Wins;
Township Schools Have
New Board

Following the trend of the state, Greene County favored the proposed tax limit amendment to the state constitution while Xenia voters elected three new City Commissioners and a judge to preside over the newly-created municipal court as the most important results of Tuesday's election.

Three vacancies on City Commission were filled by the election of Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, at present Greene County coroner; Harry M. Fisher, railroad engineer and former commissioner, and H. L. Binder, theater owner and first president of the Xenia Retail Merchant's Association.

By an unofficial margin of sixty-five votes Attorney E. Dawson Smith, Democrat, running on a non-partisan ticket, was elected judge of the new municipal court, defeating Attorney James P. Kyle, Republican, his rival candidate. The vote was: Smith, 1,322; Kyle, 1,267.

Defeated candidates for City Commission were: Karl R. Babbs and David Cherry, present commissioners, and Dr. John A. Yoer, osteopath.

Dr. Chambliss, who has another year or two to serve as county coroner, will probably be required to resign this position by January 1 in order to qualify for a seat on the commission as no candidate, under terms of the city charter, may hold two elective offices at the same time. Dr. Chambliss led the ticket, polling 1,202 votes. Fisher was runner-up with 1,073 votes and Binder came in third with 1,059.

Virginia Returns
To Democratic Fold
When Pollard Wins

"Regulars" Victors Over
Cannonism In State
Voting

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 6.—Virginia came back to the Democratic fold with a bang today after her spectacular swing into Republican ranks a year ago.

Stragglers return from the back country only served to emphasize today the smashing victory won by Dr. John Garland Pollard, regular Democratic nominee for governor, over Prof. William Mosley Brown, who left a university chair to run for the governorship as a coalition candidate of the Republicans and the anti-Smith Democrats, led by Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

Dr. Pollard's lead this morning was approximately 65,000 votes and it may go to 70,000. It constitutes one of the largest majorities the old dominion ever gave any candidate for the office, and the size of the vote was a source of jubilation to Democratic leaders.

James H. Price, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, and John R. Saunders, for attorney general, were also on the winning ticket.

Dr. Pollard literally swept the state. He even carried the home town of Bishop Cannon, Blackstone, by an overwhelming majority. Pollard received 479 votes in Blackstone to sixty-three for Dr. Brown.

While Democratic leaders had expected victory, they had not expected it by any such smashing margin. Yesterday they had publicly predicted 50,000 and privately hoped for 25,000.

They declared today that the vote means a striking repudiation of Bishop Cannon's political leadership in the state, for it was Bishop Cannon who mobilized the state against Smith a year ago, and who effected the coalition this year between the Republicans and the anti-Smith Democrats. Bishop Cannon sailed for South America a few weeks ago, after circulating the state with a final appeal to the electorate to elect Dr. Brown and "repudiate Smithism and Raskobism."

EXECUTOR SUES TO PREVENT DISPOSAL OF REAL PROPERTY

Attorney W. L. Miller, as executor of the estate of Martha Seiver Oglesbee, deceased, has brought suit in Common Pleas Court requesting that the inheritance of George D. Oglesbee in his wife's estate be declared forfeited on the ground he has violated terms of the will.

It is asserted that Mrs. Oglesbee died December 21, 1921 and that her husband was to inherit her property and retain possession during his lifetime providing that he kept the farms in a good state of cultivation, made necessary repairs, kept up improvements, paid the taxes and did not sell the land.

The executor claims that Oglesbee has violated provisions of the will by failing to keep up improvements, allowing taxes to become delinquent and that he has advertised the property for sale at a public auction to be conducted by Sheriff Ohmer Tate, November 23, contrary to the will.

As a result it is claimed Oglesbee has forfeited his rights and title to the property under the will. The plaintiff asks that he be authorized to carry out the terms of the will with respect to disposition of the property at the termination of the life estate held by Oglesbee.

A temporary injunction was granted by the court enjoining Sheriff Tate from selling the property at the auction sale assigned for November 23.

Forty-three persons, including relatives who would benefit by a disposition of the estate, are defendants in the action. They are: George D. Oglesbee, as widower of George D. Oglesbee; Sarah Weston, Margaret Morgan Shaw, Lester Harner, Roswell Harner, Altha May Breesee, Gertrude Swisher, Charles Seiver, William Seiver, Mollie Salisbury, Sarah Azella Jensen, Nettie Chapman, Elmer O. Seiver, Cosette Seiver, Pearl R. Seiver, Raymond A. Seiver, Abbie F. Hackman, Emma Bly Currie, William L. Bly, Jessie F. Bly, Hughie Bly; Minnie Hattle, Charles S. Py, William A. Coffelt, Harry R. Coffelt, Myrtle E. Hall, Frank Harner, Charles Harner, James Harner, Martin Harner and James B. Harner, Ruth Kirkpatrick, Charles W. Harner, Rachel Harner Ruine, children of Morgan Harner, deceased; Isabella Hutchison, Betsy Jacoby, Rosanna Clark, Samuel B. Harner and Earl Rosell, Fred King, Russell C. Faris and Ray Hagler and Ohmer Tate, sheriff of Greene County.

Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiff.

SALE APPROVED

Sale of real estate to Russel C. Ferris and Lela A. Ferris for $6700 has been confirmed by the court in the case of The Home Building and Savings Co. against A. E. St. John and others in Common Pleas Court. Distribution of the proceeds of the sale was ordered, the balance after payment of costs to be applied on the judgment of the plaintiff.

FORECLOSURE SUIT

Suit for $7,178.21, alleged due on an obligation, or foreclosure and sale of mortgaged property, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by The Home Building and Savings Co. against W. Clifford Bull in Common Pleas Court. Attorney Harry D. Smith represents the plaintiff.

ROUTZONG IS AGAIN FAIRFIELD MAYOR; HUMES IS DEFEATED

By nearly a three to one majority, R. O. Routzong, mayor of Fairfield, was returned to that office for a third term, defeating a rival candidate, Harry J. Wilson, 227 to eight at Tuesday's election.

In all there were fifteen candidates seeking six vacancies on the village council. The winning candidates are: John Esterline, J. H. Dersch, William Lang, Adam Longstreth, D. G. Romsper and John Honaker. Honaker received 150 votes, Esterline, 142, Lang, 134, Longstreth, 130, Romsper, 121, and Dersch, 110. Longstreth and Lang were re-elected.

In a four-cornered fight for village marshal, William Humes was defeated for re-election by John Swadner, who polled ninety votes, nine more than obtained by Humes.

T. J. Smith was re-elected village clerk, defeating Edward Reynolds, 193 to sixty-six. R. E. Bassett was retained for a third term as treasurer, beating J. A. Bishop, 194 to seventy.

C. F. Snediker, John Groth and C. E. Pfister were elected members of the board of public affairs from a field of seven candidates.

SUPREME COURT DENIES APPEAL FROM ASSESSMENTS ALONG PIKE

Appeal of Milton Shaw and others from a judgment of the Greene County Appellate Court favoring Miss Helen Dadds as county treasurer in a case involving the validity of certain assessments made in connection with the improvement of the Greene County portion of the Springfield-Xenia Pike, was rejected Wednesday by the Ohio Supreme Court. The court denied a motion of the plaintiffs to certify the record in the action.

Funds necessary for the paving of the highway in question were derived from an appropriation made by this federal government, state highway funds, local county funds and assessments upon property contiguous to the highway re-modelled.

It was claimed by the abutting land owners who brought an injunction suit in an effort to prevent collection of the assessments that they were not notified of the proposed improvement until after the contract for the project had been awarded and the work completed.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy held that a section of the state highway code was unconstitutional and granted the farmers a temporary injunction. His decision was reversed by the Greene County Court of Appeals.

It was also urged that the assessment of 10 per cent of the cost of the improvement upon the abutting property is illegal for the reason it is in excess of the benefits conferred upon the land by the re-modeling of the pike.

The appellate court held that the first objection cited, the failure to notify land owners of the fact that an assessment would be made for a part of the cost, was not fatal to the assessments. The higher court ruled also that "it could not escape the conclusion that some advantage would flow to the lands so assessed for the improvement."

It was declared that the assessments were not excessive nor greater than the benefits derived by the property owners.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of the Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation
(Written expressly for International News Service)

7. The Weather

At least a rudimentary knowledge of meteorology, the science of the atmosphere, is essential to every flyer. With changes in the weather and with the causes of these changes he must be familiar. If he is to domuch "cross-country" flying, meteorology is a subject in which he should be thoroughly versed.

Six major atmospheric factors determine the weather: temperature, pressure, wind, humidity, clouds and precipitation. These factors undergo both general and local changes, periodically and non-periodically, and all have their different effects upon flying conditions.

For local flights, the airman considers chiefly the wind, which bears so directly on his take-offs, landings and speed; the visibility, which limits the extent of his vision; the clouds, whose altitude may restrict the height at which he may fly (ceiling).

He will learn that high wind often accompanies sudden changes in temperature or barometric pressure; that warm winds passing over cold ground or cold winds blowing over warm earth frequently creates fog; that various types of clouds (cirrus, stratus, cumulus, nimbus, etc.) are to be found at somewhat fixed altitudes in different seasons.

(Tomorrow's article of Plane Talk will discuss using weather knowledge in flight).

BANDIT WITH SHORT HAIR BEING SOUGHT

DAYTON, O., Nov. 6.—Ladies, if you are hard boiled and bobbed hair dresses your cranium, let this be a warning. Police are looking for just such a person. That is if you are a bandit.

Why? A well-dressed young man accompanying a hard boiled bobbed haired woman bandit held up and robbed a manager of a chain store here last night of $50.

The man was lying in the rear of the store where he was found by a customer.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The student council held a meeting Tuesday morning for the purpose of selecting a chairman and another representative for senior high and a junior high representative, to help with the Junior Community Chest drive. A tie resulted for the chairmanship and so another meeting was called Tuesday afternoon. At this time Alice Hagler was chosen chairman and Birch Bell representative. A tie for chairmanship had existed between these two but after a brief discussion, Miss Hagler was chosen. She is a senior. Birch Bell is a junior. obert Foley, an eighth grade boy, was chosen as junior high representative.

Mr. Woodruff explained the situation the "Review" is in at present and asked if something could be done to put the paper back on its feet. It was decided to run the paper as usual but with a little smaller size of paper. It was pointed out that just as much news could be printed as usual and that nothing would be left out.

The Glee Club operetta proved to be a success both on the stage and at the financial end. A good house attended the show and something over one hundred dollars is thought to have been cleared. The proceeds go to help pay for the new piano purchased last year. The next performance to be put on by the Glee Clubs will probably be a minstrel show the first of the year.

The senior girls held a polar cake sale Tuesday at 2:45 p. m. Quite a few of the ice cream pies were sold and the girls realized a small profit that they expect to use for the "annual".

About twelve students reported for debate tryouts Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Boyce and Mr. Hammerle are in charge and expect to announce the students to be used on the two teams within a few days.

Coaches Glenn Patterson and John Gibney will take their junior high and freshman squad to Dayton Oakwood Thursday afternoon. The boys have been going through some pretty stiff workouts this week and should be in good shape for the game. Their first game was pretty tough playing with a more experienced and bigger outfit, but they have corrected most of their faults in the past two weeks' practice and have been given a few signals. A definite lineup is not to be announced at present but it is pretty certain that Smith will start at center, with Adair, Baker and Ralls in the backfield.

Tickets for the Troy game have arrived and are on sale by the faculty manager for thirty-five cents. The Troy game is to be played on Thursday because of the teachers meeting at Dayton Friday and Saturday.

The work on the new bleachers is progressing rapidly and should be completed within a few days. They will be ready for occupancy for the Wilmington game. They will seat about four hundred and fifty persons.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUT OF THE HEART—A good man out of the good treasure of the evil treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil, for of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.—Luke 6:45.

A SEARCHING QUESTION—And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?—Luke 6:46.

THE TARDIEU CABINET

Andre Tardieu has solved the governmental crisis that kept France without a cabinet for 10 days by the formation of a government of the Centre, with support from the Right. After the overthrow of Aristide Briand's twelfth government on October 22, an attempt was made by Senator Clementel to create a government based on the Centre, with Left support. This failed, as did the attempt of Edouard Deladier to organize an out and out Left government. The Tardieu government is so composed as to give its leader hope that it will placate the conservative elements in the chamber, who led the recent revolt against Briand, without alarming the liberal-radical elements, who are expected to accept the retention of Aristide Briand at the foreign office as a guarantee that the policies of peace and conciliation upon which their hearts are set, will not be discarded.

The new government will have to face immediately the contentious problems involved in the evacuation of the German Rhineland, the application of the Young plan and movement for the further limitation of naval armament. Anyone of these questions may bring about its early downfall. The parties upon which the government is based, control about 300 out of 612 votes in the chamber of deputies. The majority necessary to enable it to carry through its program will have to be obtained from groups in the chamber that are more in sympathy with Briand than with Tardieu. This places the great conciliator again in the position he enjoyed in the last Poincare government, where he acted as a brake upon the fire-eating propensities of his chief.

Although Briand calls him "a man of the Centre," Andre Tardieu has strong leanings to the Right. Americans know him best as high commissioner for France to the United States during the war. As a writer and lecturer, Tardieu has done much to bolster the prestige of France abroad. Clemenceau used him during the war and later took him to Versailles, where he familiarized himself with the peace treaty in a way to enable him subsequently to place upon it constructions most favorable to France. A "patriot," whose nationalism at times has been tainted with chauvinism, Andre Tardieu is mentally far removed from Aristide Briand, whose policies are the chief bone of contention with which the new government will have to deal. Whether it will be compromise or crash will depend upon whether or not Tardieu's political spine is pliable, as well as strong.

A story is current regarding a 13-year-old Texan who built an experimental airplane and then tried to get somebody else to test it. That kid may have the makings of a great leader.

One way to get rid of interminable delays and interminable oratory in the senate would be to abolish the body, and let the members earn their livings on the Chautauqua circuit, if they can.

Stripped of oratorical embellishment, the "arguments" of the senators who object to the "flexible" provision of the tariff law are a confession of envy of the executive.

Trustees of the estate have been able to recruit only 100 sailors, who are supported by an income of more than a million dollars a year.

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

THE HIGH SPOTS BEST

Five hundred members of an Ohio Sunday school on a recent Sunday copied the whole Bible in longhand. Each took a certain number of verses. This was an interesting stunt, and may have done some good in gaining publicity for the church. Otherwise the time might have been spent to better advantage.

Better to have concentrated on the high spots—the important and beautiful spots of the Bible—and to have paid less attention to the rest. Much of the history in the Bible can be read elsewhere. Some of the opinion therein is not applicable to the day and world in which we live. But there is a philosophy therein, and a statement of principles which are never too old or too well-known to be unworthy of concentrated study.

If every member of this Ohio Sunday school would pick—or have somebody pick for him—20 verses from the Bible and commit them irrevocably to memory, he would be using his time more wisely than to copy the whole book word for word.

REGULAR HABITS

Most of us are brought up to believe in the beauty and power of regular habits. We are made to think we should sleep at the right time, and always enough; rise early, at the same hour every morning; eat regularly, and fit ourselves into the hard and fast routine of daily existence. Maybe so. At least, maybe so for some people. Comes now the personal physician of King Alfonso, of Spain, and bears testimony. He says:

"The king is in beautiful health because he has never been a man of regular habits."

"My sovereign has never been a slave to regular diet, regular sleep, regular exercise, or regular anything else. He is not so stupid. Consequently, at the age of 43, he is in beautiful health, and he has never had a serious illness in his life."

"The only worry he causes me arises from the fact he is so busy he does not get enough sleep—in my opinion. Even kings should sleep eight hours, but he only gets about six and a half."

"Perhaps it is his moderation in eating and drinking which counteracts the bad effects of insufficient sleep. He eats less than half the amount the average man does, and he drinks very lightly."

SHIPPING OF MUNITIONS TO BELLIGERENT NATIONS SCORED

By HAMILTON FISH, JR. Congressmen from New York (Hamilton Fish, Jr.) was born at Garrison, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1888. He is a graduate of Harvard university where he studied law. Vice president of a general insurance company, he was elected to the New York assembly in 1914. In 1919 he was elected to congress to fill a vacancy from the 26th New York district and has been returned each term since. He is a Republican and a World War veteran.

Munitions manufacturers should be prohibited from shipping their products to belligerent nations without the specific consent of congress.

I believe it was Woodrow Wilson who said: "When peace is conducted in the spirit of war, there will be no war." What could be truer, and how important it is to teach and preach the gospel of peace both by words and deeds.

Although the guns have been silent since the armistice we have had no peace. We have had nothing but international discord, bitterness and hatred.

The most difficult and vexing unsolved problem left after the World war was that dealing with the settlement of reparations. The Dawes plan was a step in the right direction but it was merely a stop gap, as no definite sum was fixed or any agreement reached to withdraw the allied troops from Germany. The plan worked out last spring through the unmitigated efforts, ability, tact and patience of that great American, Owen D. Young, received the practically unanimous approval of all the nations haggling after the spoils of war from Germany and was even acclaimed as an economic miracle in Berlin.

France, which had hitherto declined to ratify the Mellon-Berenger war debt agreement, did so almost immediately, showing that the French government was simply waiting to have the reparations question settled for all time before committing itself to an adjustment of the war debt with the United States. The Young plan scaled down the reparations debt to the sum of $9,000,000,000 present value, with fixed annual payments, and removed a number of irritating conditions which leaves the door open for progress toward reconciliation.

Owen D. Young is merely a private American citizen, but he has accomplished more for his country and for the world in the mad scramble over German reparations.

There is no sound reason why we should permit our munitions makers for sake of profit and greed to ship munitions to belligerent nations with which we are at peace without the consent of congress. If we must have wars in the future let it be in defense of the United States and not in defense of war profiteers or the greed of munition manufacturers.

IN THE AGE OON SEASON IS ON!

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Your hair is entirely dependent on the scalp for beauty and health. If your scalp is in a clean, healthy condition, your hair will immediately reflect it. The scalp, like any other part of the body, needs exercise in order to keep its youth and beauty. Unfortunately, too, many women ignore the fact of this need and permit the scalp to get very tight. As a direct result, the hair becomes dry and is inclined to early grayness.

The purpose of the exercise is to stimulate circulation, and there has been no recent discovery which brings better results than a thorough brushing with a long, narrow brush with long bristles. Brushing, in order to be beneficial, should be done away from the head, not down, as most women do it. Bobbed hair needs as thorough brushing as long hair.

Massage of the scalp can be best done just after the hair has been shampooed. Scalp massage can be fairly vigorous. Here is a simple correct method for performing this massage. Place the palms of the hands flat against the sides of the head and move the scalp with a full, round movement. Then massage sections of the scalp with the tips of your fingers, with a rotary movement, holding your fingertips steady and making the scalp move. Dry massage, in between shampoos, is wonderfully invigorating. From five to ten minutes in the morning, before combing your hair, and at night before going to bed, will bring your hair back to glowing health. You will actually be able to see the healthy sheen increase as time goes on.

While some hair has a tendency to early grayness, more than other hair, massage will help to preserve the pigment of the hair. The stimulation of the scalp sets the blood circulating and feeds the little roots of the hair.

I think you will be more than compensated for the effort expended, since healthy hair is beautiful hair, and beautiful hair adds charm and distinction to your appearance.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Nov. 4.—Wall Street has been experiencing quite a series of shakeups in recent months, but here in Washington hardly any attention was paid to them.

Once or twice there was a bit of congressional grumbling about the federal reserve board. However, it was political; not from folk who knew anything as to real business conditions. The latter were not suffering but international discord, bitterness and hatred.

The most difficult and vexing unsolved problem left after the World war was that dealing with the settlement of reparations. The Dawes plan was a step in the right direction but it was merely a stop gap, as no definite sum was fixed or any agreement reached to withdraw the allied troops from Germany. This menu was planned for three people. I am enclosing a recipe for Maryland chicken pies to finish the leftovers of chicken the second day.

Today's Recipes

Wheat Cakes With Sweet Corn
This recipe was given by an old Negro mammy at a Maryland tavern, as was the recipe for Maryland chicken pies. Two cups prepared wheat cake flour, one and one-half cups water, one-half cup sweet corn. Leftover canned sweet corn may be used from the preceding supper. Beat this to a well mixed batter and fry on a hot griddle. Serve with maple syrup.

Roast Chicken With Bacon Slices
One chicken (old), six bacon slices, salt. Cover the chicken with salted water overnight. Pour off part of the water the next morning and cook until fairly tender. Remove to a roasting pan, placing three strips of bacon underneath the chicken. Pack bread dressing mixed with the chopped giblets around the chicken. Cover the breast and neck with the remaining three bacon slices and roast one hour.

Maryland Chicken Pies—One and one-half cups leftover flaked chicken, one cup thick white sauce, three teaspoons butter substitute. Mix in order given and line individual pie pans with a flaky pastry. Fill with chicken mixture and cover with steamers, piercing the top well or steam will make the pies soggy. Bake as quickly as possible and brown well.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.
—Jewish Proverb.

"My little girl is five years old and is very much underweight. She has no appetite and resents having to go to sleep, although I have used every means of inducement and force. She has an intestinal infection—amoeba, the doctors call it. She has apparently had it for a long time, but it was not discovered until recently. They gave me medicine for her, but did not give me any special diet. Please advise me as to diet and treatment. Do you think a child in this condition ought to go to school? She is an only child. Mrs. O."

It may be possible that your child's undernourishment is due to her infection of the intestinal tract. And, then again, it may be possible that it is the other way around: the infection may persist because of her undernourishment. Undernourishment means a deficiency of the vitamins as well as other elements in the diet, and where there is a deficiency (especially of the vitamins), the resisting power of the intestinal tract and the other organs is so much lowered that infections can gain a foothold.

The child's finicky appetite in turn may be due to mismanagement on your part. It's too bad that all mothers cannot take a course in child psychology. Well, what you must do is to first see that she gets a plentiful supply of vitamins, especially the growth vitamin A, and the appetite-stimulating vitamin B. The growth vitamin A she can get more of, by having more cream and green leaf vegetables and some cod liver oil, and the vitamin B she can get by having more raw fruits and vegetables (especially tomatoes—raw, canned or dried—fresh cabbage and spinach), whole grain breads and cereals in the place of the refined. I would see that she has a good sized dishful of these vegetables every day.

Of course, it is much better to get the vitamin B in the fruit and vegetables which also supply mineral elements and other food elements, but if there has been a great deficiency of the vitamin over a long period, it may be wise to give her this vitamin in concentrated form as is found in yeast and yeast extracts for a period.

I think you will find that she will sleep more when she eats better, and even though she doesn't sleep, she should lie down for a rest period for an hour, twice a day.

Your little girl is under school age. Whether she should be proved by going to kindergarten or not, I cannot say. It may be that the happy association with other children would be beneficial to her. If there is a nutrition class that she can go to, I certainly would recommend that. She must be taught, as all children should be, the importance of being very careful in washing the hands after going to the toilet, and in case of any infection, it is doubly important, both for the protection of others and to prevent re-infection.

I haven't run the foundation for children for a long while. I get wonderful results from it. Here 'tis.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your advice to folk who are in trouble, so I am coming to you with my share, too. I am a woman in my early thirties. I have loved a man for five years. I would give anything to forget him. For him to smile at me gladdens my heart. I blush like a schoolgirl and my heart beats like a trip hammer when I see him.

"I have reluctantly absented myself from places where I knew he would go, only to find I loved him just the same. Once I met him on the street and he smilingly told me he still loved me. Please, can you suggest a way to help me?"

"Does he know I care like this? No. My husband used to step out on me but now is a changed man, wants to stay home and lavish affection on me. He nearly broke my heart by his unfaithfulness in former years. Don't misunderstand me, dear Virginia Lee. I am not a moral croak. I don't mean to give in to this love that's in my heart. I am waiting anxiously for your answer.

"YOURS TRULY."
You don't say whether your friend is married or free nor how well you know him and how you have been associated. It seems, if he is free and wants you that he might divorce your husband and marry him. Your husband was untrue to you, he should remember.

But I don't think you will. You are not that kind. You wouldn't throw your husband over, I judge from your letter, to get even, and you probably wouldn't enjoy your life with this other man, thinking you had left your husband and made him unhappy.

All that is left to do is to keep the love you feel for this man deep down in your heart and go right ahead as you are, doing your duty as wife and housekeeper, and waiting to see what life will bring.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl of 18 and am in love with a sailor boy. He is sailing for Cuba, and when he comes back, in three weeks, we are going to marry.

"My mother died a month ago and I live with my father and brother. My brother is always nagging me and makes it unbearable for me. I cannot stand it and longer. Can you give me some advice? I am so terribly lonely since mother died.

"Please Virginia Lee, help me. I cannot give him up because I love him too much and I am so happy when I am with him. What shall I go? SAILOR'S SWEETHEART."

If he is a sailor and is going away you cannot be a wife in more than name, can you? Wouldn't it be better to wait until you are a little older? Your father and brother may be very lonely, too, and need you. They were one reason your brother nags you. He is trying to cover up his own grief.

What do you think your mother would advise if she were with you? Would she want you to get married and maybe desert your father and brother and leave them lonelier than ever? You don't have to give the boy friend up. Simply don't go off and get married just yet.

J. M. My dear, your husband is old and needs you. That you admit. I don't know how you came to marry a man so much older than yourself, and think it was a great mistake, but now that you are married and he needs you, why not be true to him?

You are only playing with fire when you want to write to this other man and send him your picture. If you cannot be true to your husband, the only decent thing to do is to divorce him and be free to love another.

If you decide to stay with your husband, my advice is to let the other man go, don't try to keep him interested, and let things work out as they will. There are more important things in life than one's individual happiness, you will find out as you grow older.

PUZZLED—If you don't care particularly about the boy friend, your worry about the fact that your girl friend is taking him away from you? Just cut natural with both, although I don't believe I'd cultivate the kind of girl who would do such a thing—that is, one who would make a practice of it. It would serve her right if you teased her a bit about her acquiescence of the boy friend, especially if her conscience is troubling her a bit.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am in love with a girl, but when I am in her company I don't know what to talk about. Advise me what to say."

What is she interested in, and what interests you? Do you go to school? Do you both work? Do you go to the movies, to concerts, to church, Sunday school, dances. Talk about them, and about the people you meet and like, about any sports in which you are interested, in her ideas of life and yours. Try to get her to talk and you will be all set.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

HOLA, THE HUNT!

When the circle was completed Grass-Green stepped inside the ring and blew a shrill blast on a tiny horn. At the signal Stag and Rose took their places, one on either side of Grass-Green.

"The hunt is on, O! the hunt!" shrilled Grass-Green, loudly. And all the beetles answered, "Hurrah, the hunt is on!" Again the band turned up, and two by two the beetles grouped themselves in line behind the three big beetles in the center of the ring. A second blast on the tiny horn and out of the circle, down the garden path, hurried Grass-Green and Stag and Rose. After them sallied the others.

Peter wanted to see the fun and ran as fast as he could to catch up with the hunters. But the clung beetles ran in his way. One fellow bumped into him with such force that the boy fell on his nose in the gravel. When he picked himself up the beetles were so far ahead that he knew his two legs would never carry him to them. The beetle who had tripped him never stopped to see if he was hurt. Even Lady Bird seemed to have forgotten all about him in the excitement of the moment.

"Impossible little thing!" murmured Peter, his feelings hurt at Lady Bird's neglect. "She, at least, might have stayed by me, since it was she in the first place, who invited me to the hunt. As for the chap who bumped into me—wait 'till I catch him! Just for spite I hope I'll catch the beetles before they can. Come to think of it, nobody told me what they are after."

Peter was in no good humor. He little would have known that he had scratched a beetle and now it was to smart. And he had to go down to the brook and bade to

Fast, hard-hitting backs who can mix pretty punts and bullet-like forward passes with their ball-carrying are the lads who furnish color for the folks who fight for the fifty-yard line seats, and the Buckeye Conference has introduced a promising lot of sophomores who fill that description this fall.

Ohio Wesleyan has outstanding sophomore backs in Roderick Campbell, Bellefontaine, halfback, and Edgar Westfall, Dayton, quarterback. These boys are the best passers on the Bishop squad and are good punters. As ball-carriers both are fast and clever while Campbell, who weighs 180 pounds when in top condition, is a terrific line plunger. Robert Morton, Xenia, another sophomore halfback, the best punter on the Bishop squad and a shifty runner. Howard Grayson, Springfield, a great defensive fullback who gives promise of becoming an equally great line-smasher, completes the Bishop's stellar sophomore backfield.

At Miami, a sophomore, Robert Corry, an all-Galago halfback, weighing around 185 pounds, has already clinched a place in the "Big Red" backfield. He is a triple threat player. Tom Castillo, Springfield, is another sophomore back who will be heard from at Miami. Castillo is only five feet four inches tall and weighs 134 pounds, but many Oxford fans believe him to be the best all-around backfield man who has made his appearance there in a decade. He is a sure tackler, a clever runner and a good passer and kicker.

Wittenberg boasts a prize assortment of sophomore backs and some of the Lutheran lettermen may get a chance to watch lots of football this season. Among them are two fine fullbacks, Stanley "Saint" Plummer, Coshocton, a 180-pounder, and Charles Baker, Bucyrus, a six-footer, who tips the weighing machinery at 170 pounds. Coach Stobbs bumps into a likely sophomore halfback most anywhere he goes on the Wittenberg practice field. "Click" Peterson, Elkhart, Ind., rugged, fleet and shifty, is as highly touted as any although the class also includes Collin Lanning, Cleveland; William Bricker, Mt. Vernon, and William Price, Massillon, brother of the famous "Jimmy" last season's all-Buckeye quarter back Douglas Smith, Cleveland, is a big soph quarterback who may also develop.

Ohio, Denison and Cincinnati have also uncovered their share of speed and smash among the sophomore backs as the season advances. No less authority than Coach Gauthier, of Ohio Wesleyan, declares that the 1929 Ohio University football team is the best Ohio U. has ever produced. Gauthier ought to know after seeing the Bobcats send the Bishops off to a bad start in the Buckeye Conference schedule this season. He was particularly impressed with the play of Kepler and Young, whom he says are highly accomplished players.

Basketball practice in the Buckeye Conference may be started this year whenever the respective coaches choose to begin, according to a recent ruling of the athletic directors. In previous years basketball practice has been barred until the close of the football season.

Here is some good or bad news for the "Park-O-Lights." The foot ball team representing Shawnee Park and environs this season is to have opposition next Sunday afternoon if it accepts a challenge hurled in its general direction Tuesday. Ben Lickliter, well-known drug-store cowboy, having recently come into possession of a football, announces the formation of the "Night Owls," of which he (having the football) will, of course be captain and safety player. Ben dares the "Park-O-Lights" to show up for a game in the park Sunday.

PRESIDENT HOOVER SNUBS JOHNSON; IS OMITTED AT DINNER

California Senator Left Out In Cold At Social Function

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Tongues were wagging all over Washington today over President Hoover's failure to invite Senator Hiram Johnson (R) of California, to the formal dinner given at the White House last night for Ambassador Charles G. Dawes.

Every other member of the senate foreign relations committee who was in the city was asked except Johnson, and the cut was so marked as to bring into open discussion the long-standing coolness between the two men.

While Washington has long known that there is no cordiality between the two Californians, the exclusion of Senator Johnson from what was regarded as a purely formal function caused a stir in official and social circles.

No explanation was forthcoming from the White House today for the omission of Johnson's name, and as for the senator he had only this to say:

"Of course, I have no comment to make."

The coolness between the two goes back a number of years. In 1920, Hoover's friends made an effort to carry the state for him in the presidential primary at a time when Johnson was being projected as California's "favorite son" in the Chicago convention. Johnson won easily.

In the last campaign a compromise was effected whereby Johnson did not oppose the California delegation going to Kansas City for Hoover in return for the Hoover managers in California not opposing Johnson's return for the senate. After the nomination, Johnson conferred with Hoover, but thereafter pursued an independent course and while tacitly supporting him made few speeches.

Since Hoover has been in the White House Johnson has opposed the administration in many of its policies. He has fairly consistently voted with the Democratic-Insurgent coalition in the senate on tariff matters, voted for the debenture which Hoover opposed so vigorously, and also voted to deny the flexible tariff powers which the president requested.

MAY DROP MURDER CHARGE IN CASE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 6.—With testimony of Sam Epstein, steward of the steamer Creole, supporting the stories of others who state that Jack Kraft leaped to his death, the case today appeared ready to be dropped.

In view of Epstein's story yesterday the possibility looms that John McGouldrick, second mate of the steamer, will have the murder charge against him dismissed when he is arraigned tomorrow, it was indicated by District Attorney Leander Perez.

McGouldrick was indicted by a grand jury for the murder of Kraft following testimony given by Gloria Rouzer, the "Tone Ord" of the death mystery.

Epstein was released after he occupied the witness stand in the Pointe-a-la-Hache court house for more than two hours. Throughout his testimony he insisted Kraft leaped over the steamer rail after he had quarrelled with Miss Rouzer.

ARE GRIDIRON SCHEDULES BECOMING TOO TOUGH?

Early season upsets in which fine football teams are eliminated from national championship consideration have almost become the rule as football schedules become harder with each year. Coaches shown above have good teams which were put out of the running this season by unlooked for defeats or ties.

ELECTORS WRITE IN NAMES IN TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARD VOTE

Morton Dallas, farmer, Lincoln R. Gibbs, professor of Antioch College, and E. Kenneth Fog, farmer, were elected to fill the three vacancies on the Miami Twp. Board of Education at Tuesday's election terminating what was probably the most spirited campaign in the entire county.

Unusual interest had been manifested in the contest for positions on the Miami Twp. school board due to the fact that the nominating petitions of six of the seven candidates who entered the race were rejected by the board of elections.

Rejection of these petitions left only Morton Dallas, whose name was the only one to appear on the ballots. However, the names of four other candidates, including three whose petitions had been held invalid, were written in on the ballots by voters.

Dallas led the ticket, polling 367 votes. Prof. Gibbs came second with 314 and Kenneth Fog was third with 295 votes. Fog was elected but the other two winning candidates are new members.

Defeated candidates were two women, Mrs. Carl Drake, who obtained 213 votes and Mrs. D. A. Brewer, who received one less. Mrs. Brewer was formerly a member of the Yellow Springs village school board, which was dissolved at a special election held a few months ago and joined the contiguous Miami Twp. rural school district.

Five candidates sought the position of trustee of Miami Twp., and with three vacancies on the board to be filled, F. W. Johnson, M. A. Ault and C. C. Martin were believed to have been the winning candidates, although one township precinct was unreported when the announcement was made by a village official.

Towne Carlisle was unopposed for township clerk and George A. Baker was the only candidate for constable.

COUNTY VOTES TO ABANDON TWO MILL LEVY FOR ROAD PURPOSES

By an unofficial majority of about 350 votes, Greene County voters disapproved of continuance of the present county road levy of two mills for another five years at Tuesday's election.

The total vote for the forty-eight precincts was announced by officials of the board of elections as 3,242 in favor of the levy and 3,595 against its continuance.

The levy has been in effect for ten years and has created funds with which county road officials have carried forward improvements of county and township roads.

Continuance of this road work had depended upon a favorable vote on the levy. Failure of the levy to carry means that available funds for road work in this county will be reduced by $112,000 a year.

From investigation of the funds accruing to the county for road building purposes from gasoline tax and motor vehicle fees, it is found an insufficient amount will come from these sources to permit a county-wide program of any size. In other words, it is pointed out that the county will not now be able to meet township trustees' dollar for dollar in building local roads.

Only such part of the gasoline tax which is apportioned to townships and the counties' part of 5 per cent of the second two-cent gasoline tax apportioned to the counties, are available for road building. The greater part of the gasoline taxes and motor vehicle fees accruing to any county must be used for road maintenance and repair.

Seeking his first elective term of office in opposition to the candidacy of the Rev. H. S. Snyder, pastor of the Church of Christ, W. E. Reid was elected mayor of Jamestown at the election Tuesday by a substantial majority.

Reid, as president of the village council, became acting mayor of the village about a year ago upon the death of Dr. F. W. Ogan and has since been serving in that capacity.

An extra tax levy of three mills for three years to meet current expenses of the village school district was also approved by the voters by a safe majority.

Fred L. Nelson, Milton A. Oliver and Ernest Rockhold were elected members of the village school board. Rockhold's name was written in by the voters and he defeated Francis H. Clark for the third vacancy on the board.

Six candidates who filed for that many vacancies on the village council had no opposition. A. J. Barnes, A. L. Smith, N. N. Hunter, W. A. Thomas, W. A. Bryan and George Sanders were elected to the council seats but a vacancy will exist because of the fact Bryan has moved to Cedarville.

John Baughn, former deputy sheriff of Greene County, was re-elected village marshal, defeating Al Zeiner, former marshal, whose name was written in on the ballots by voters. Baughn defeated Zeiner for village marshal two years ago. Charles W. Moorman was elected treasurer and A. Y. Whitehead, clerk, without opposition.

Russell Spahr, Roscoe E. Turner and W. B. Clemmer were elected to the three vacancies on the Silver creek Twp. school board. G. M. Jenks, a fourth candidate, was defeated. C. D. Lackey, C. S. Bullock and Charles A. Robinson, trustee board candidates, had no opposition.

E. H. Smith defeated Wilfred A. Weimer for clerk of the township board.

POEMS that Live

GOOD-NIGHT
Ah, good the night
That wraps thee in its silver light.
Good-night. No night is good for me
That does not hold a thought of thee.
Good-night.

Good-night. Be every night as sweet
As that which made our love complete,
Till that last night when death shall be
One brief "Good-night," for thee and me.
Good-night.
S. Weir Mitchell (1829-1914)

CLIFTON HAS QUIET ELECTION TUESDAY

As far as the village of Clifton was concerned the municipal election Tuesday held little interest because of the absence of contests for any public office.

A. T. Young was re-elected village mayor for a second term without opposition.

CLIFTON HAS QUIET ELECTION TUESDAY

Voters of the village school district also approved an extra tax levy for three years for school purposes, proposed by the Clifton board of education. The increased rate is for school purposes to provide additional funds for current expenses. The levy carried by a small majority.

King of Hedges

LONDON, O., Nov. 6.—Think of the distance from New York to Denver by air line and you have a picture of the hedge fence William J. Keyes, of London, has planted and trimmed in the past forty years—a total of more than 2,000 miles.

The London hedge trimmer de luxe has planted and trimmed practically all of the hedge fence in this section for so long that he is looked upon as the "king" of the business.

Began in Tiffin
He began his special work years ago in Tiffin, O., and later located here, where he superintended the planting of miles and miles of hedge fence, using the Osage orange plants for his work.

When the hedge began to grow beyond the size and height desired, Keys found a big job facing him. He has handled it without aid for the past thirty years, and in that time walked thousands and thousands of miles, back and forth along the fences and back and forth to work for he still uses the old-fashioned walking "method" of transportation.

Two Tools
He uses only two tools—a sharp knife resembling a corn cutter's knife, and large shears. Twice a year he visits the hedges of his section, trimming them as only an artist can.

Keys takes great pride in his work, and contends that the hedge make the best fence in the world if properly set and trimmed.

Now shallow wells dot the landscape and the oil, which has been diverted into ditches, is taken out by small pumps.

A. E. Richards, druggist, was elected mayor of Cedarville for his first term without opposition at the election Tuesday. He succeeds D. H. McFarland, who was not a candidate for re-election.

Although Ralph Wolford's name appeared on the ballot and he was elected a councilman, he had previously resigned the position to become a member of the village board of public affairs. NATIVE PINE TREES ARE AVAILABLE FOR USE AT CHRISTMAS

A number of native pine trees from Pike County, to be used for yard decorations at Christmas time, have been obtained by the Xenia Garden Club for distribution here at cost.

The club has brought a truck load of the trees, complete with roots so they can be planted, and is anxious to distribute them to the Xenians who will plant them in their front yards and decorate them for the Christmas holidays.

The club points out that the simple decorations of strings of popcorn and cranberries make the trees attractive at little cost and that they can be eaten by the birds when they have served their purpose. Now is the time for planting evergreens, the Garden Club says, and while the native pines may not be as handsome as others, they cost much less than the other varieties.

The club is arranging to plant some of these trees on principal entrances to the city and will decorate them for the holidays. One will be planted on E. Main St., one on the Dayton Ave. approach, three in the W. Main St. parking space, two in the Home Ave. park and two near the stand pipe. Xenians who want trees are asked to call Mrs. Charles A. Kelble, president of the club.

Wasted Evenings

Just a few evening hours each day we can call our own—yet how often we come home too tired to enjoy them!

Carelessly we blame it on hard work—yet other days we work harder and feel better. Why not face the truth squarely?

It is less a matter of over-working on our jobs than it is of over-burdening our digestive and eliminative systems. Nature is sounding her warning, that's all.

Doctors know this is true. They know, too, there is a sure, quick way to gain relief. For more than a generation they have advocated Pluto Mineral Water as the perfect combatant of constipation.

Pluto Mineral Water should never be confused with common laxatives. It is wholly different. It is not a drug. It is water. It actually water-washes the system.

Here is the reason: Its mineral content exceeds in percentage the mineral content of the blood. Hence it is not absorbed—not taken to the kidneys like ordinary water. Instead it passes intact through the intestines, flushing away the impurities as it goes.

That's why Pluto acts so promptly—30 minutes to two hours. That, too, is why it is harmless and soothing—never gripes—and has no habit-forming tendency.

For constipation there is nothing else so effective as Pluto Mineral Water. Thousands, too, follow the sensible plan of taking a little Pluto every morning on arising to keep regular, and ward off colds, influenza and other ills.

Dilute with hot water—directions on every bottle. Sold at all drug counters and fountains. Bottled at the Springs, French Lick, Indiana.

"How long you been with Mother Murphy?"
"Just a few weeks."

He went up to the sergeant and spoke a few words to him. Mike Flaherty had known Mother for years, and it was at his home she had spent the evening before. So that was the kid she had told them about. Well, he'd give her a little scare and send her home.

"How long you been drinkin' liquor?"
She twisted her hands and begged them to believe her.

"I swear I never have touched a drop of the awful stuff. He gave me a swallow and I spit it out because it burned me."

Mike Flaherty turned to Neil stonily.

"Is that so, you big stiff?"
Neil was by this time a little more sober and frightened himself. Rosalie was surprised when he admitted so reluctantly that he had forced it upon her.

"A fine gentleman you are." The sergeant leaned over the desk and took his first threateningly at the cowering Neil. "Takin' a good little motherless girl out and tryin' to get her tight. You ought to be beat to a pulp!"

Rosalie did not feel at all sorry for him. He had deceived her. A lie to her was a serious thing. She had known and adored her old playmate all her life. And now she felt she could never trust him again.

Flaherty took up his club and turned to her.

"I guess I'll be after puttin' this little fool in a cab, sergeant. What're you gonna do with the count here?"

"Put him in the cooler and sober him up. We'll talk business tomorrow."

"He—he's going to—jail?" Rosalie stared at Neil as though he were a new species of animal. "You—you're going to lock him up?"

"I hope to tell you, sister, we sure are. Free bed and breakfast."

COTTON STOCKINGS

ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, after the death of her mother, secures a position at the hosiery counter in a Philadelphia store through the kindness of Kenessa Du Barry, an actress. She is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, corner newsboy. Her first day at the store she wears a pair of cotton stockings because she has a "run" in her old pair of silk ones. After the girls at the store make fun of her, Rosalie, in desperation, takes a pair of silk stockings from the stock, promising herself to make good for them pay day. In her confusion, leaving the store, she drops the hose, and is observed by Alberto Martino, the store detective, who does not detain her, but says he will see her later.

Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the store owner, notices Rosalie and chats with her daily. Rosalie has a boy friend, Neil McKinley, back home, but they quarreled when she left for the city.

Neil calls Rosalie unexpectedly one evening. They dine, and Neil drinks too much. Speeding down the street, they are stopped by a motor policeman, who arrests them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV
"Oh, where is he going to take us?" Rosalie grabbed Neil's arm in terror.

The officer answered for Neil. "To the police station, Innocence—and no back talk."

"Oh, but please, I didn't do anything," she pleaded, wildly. "Let me go home!"

They were under a light, and Officer Flaherty looked carefully at the young, terrified face. He was a tender hearted man at times.

"You been drinkin', too, Miss?" He hesitated to take her along.

"Drinkin'?" She looked throughly angry with him. "How dare you?"

"Let me smell your breath," he leaned over. "The heck you ain't!" Rosalie turned to Neil, sitting sullen and red eyed beside her, and she could have struck him.

"So THAT'S what you gave me. That awful stuff that choked me. And you're drunk. Oh, you beast!" She began to cry. The cop did not believe her. He thought she was drunk, too.

"This ain't no place to put on the big crying act, Miss," he told her, sarcastically, and guided them to the police station a block away.

Rosalie was weak with fright when they were led into the station house. Neil had not said a word.

It was nothing new to the desk sergeant. Several times every evening the same thing occurred. He fired questions.

"Drivin' while intoxicated, eh? And drinkin' from a flask right on a main street? Who'd've thought you are?"

When Rosalie gave her name and address Officer Flaherty looked at her sharply.

"How long you been with Mother Murphy?"
"Just a few weeks."

He went up to the sergeant and spoke a few words to him. Mike Flaherty had known Mother for years, and it was at his home she had spent the evening before. So that was the kid she had told them about. Well, he'd give her a little scare and send her home.

"How long you been drinkin' liquor?"
She twisted her hands and begged them to believe her.

"I swear I never have touched a drop of the awful stuff. He gave me a swallow and I spit it out because it burned me."

Mike Flaherty turned to Neil stonily.

"Is that so, you big stiff?"
Neil was by this time a little more sober and frightened himself. Rosalie was surprised when he admitted so reluctantly that he had forced it upon her.

"A fine gentleman you are." The sergeant leaned over the desk and took his first threateningly at the cowering Neil. "Takin' a good little motherless girl out and tryin' to get her tight. You ought to be beat to a pulp!"

Rosalie did not feel at all sorry for him. He had deceived her. A lie to her was a serious thing. She had known and adored her old playmate all her life. And now she felt she could never trust him again.

Flaherty took up his club and turned to her.

"I guess I'll be after puttin' this little fool in a cab, sergeant. What're you gonna do with the count here?"

"Put him in the cooler and sober him up. We'll talk business tomorrow."

"He—he's going to—jail?" Rosalie stared at Neil as though he were a new species of animal. "You—you're going to lock him up?"

"I hope to tell you, sister, we sure are. Free bed and breakfast."

You're lucky you ain't goin' to a cell, too." The sergeant looked very cold and forbidding.

She turned at the door and looked at Neil. He was standing, head down, sullen, and there was a half sneer on his face.

Outside Mike Flaherty swung his club to a passing taxi and it pulled up.

"Oh, please, I'll find my way home in a street car."

"You'll do nothin' of the kind. You got no business chasin' around nights—a girl pretty and with dimples like you got. If you's my Betty I'd take you home and tan yer britches for you."

Rosalie blushed and stood unhappily while he went on:

"I'm givin' yez a chance—wan chance. If I ever catch yez out again with that little pugnosed quiri I'll run yez in, sure as yer a foot high."

"I'm sure I thank you," Rosalie fought hard to smile up at him. Then she added, very low so the driver wouldn't hear. "He's really a nice boy. I've known him all my life. It's his mother—she didn't bring him up like my mother did. We played together since we were babies."

It was given with such childish confidence that Mike Flaherty wanted to smile. He was touched, but he issued another parting warning.

"Mind. Don't let me catch you with any young flask totin' hoodlums agin'."

Mike handed the driver a dollar from his own slim salary and gave him the address. As the taxi started he grinned suddenly and waved his hand.

"Go home and git some sleep, Rose Bud."

In the shadows across the street a man waited for Rosalie to come home. It was "Sprinty" Flynn. But it was a long time later before she found out much about the mysterious stranger who accosted her as she went up the steps.

"Miss March," he called to her quietly. She whirled as though someone had screamed at her, and faced a little dark man with a large suitcase in his hand. Her knees weakened.

"I come from Alberto Martino. He wants you to take this grip up stairs and hide it under your bed. And tell no one—understand? That's orders. You better follow 'em out, too, if I know Martie."

"B-but," she drew back uncertainly. "What's in it?"

"None of yer business." Sprinty's ratty little eyes gleamed in the light from the street. "Keep yer trap shut and do as yer told."

She lugged the suitcase upstairs wearily. It was strapped tightly, and locked with a special lock that would not open.

The new life had shown Rosalie so many disillusionments that she knew she was under some kind of sinister shadow. She felt suddenly hemmed in and stifled, and more afraid than she had ever been in her life.

The Theater

The talkies have done more than revive the waning popularity of a lot of actors. They have revived the pie as an offensive weapon in the slap-stick comedy.

The slap-stick makers, almost their best mid-Victorian manner run out of ideas, have been able to return to pie-throwing as a principle fun-provoker because of the reaction upon the audience both of the sound of the pie-throwing and the murmurs of distress upon the part of the recipient.

Lupino Lane, the veteran slap-stick comedian, gave an example of this revival of the old gag in a comedy talkie at the Bijou Theater this week.

Lane used all the old stock gags and they went over in a big way, because of the sound effects—just

The show windows in the room on Green St., recently vacated by the Woman's Exchange, are being fitted up for use by T. H. Zell, the enterprising merchant, who occupies the adjoining room.

At a meeting of the Cedarville Protective Association a resolution was passed approving the purchase of blood hounds to be the property of the county and to be maintained by the commissioners.

Outweighed about twenty pounds a man, Xenia Hicgridders put up a game battle but lost to Troy, 13 to 6.

A number of the auto owners of the city met at the Grand Hotel and adopted a constitution and by-laws for the automobile club of Xenia and Greene County now in process of re-organization.

Three theaters, the Brangler Grand, the Shubert and the Cox have been dark all season because of the argument. The stage hands want to be paid for straight time through the season while the theater owners want to reserve the right to pay them only when they work, which would eliminate the overhead when their theaters are dark.

In the meantime the Stuart Walker Players at the Taft Auditorium are furnishing Cincinnati their only legitimate stage entertainment, and many theatergoers are going to Dayton to see the current seasonal offerings.

John L. Horgan, manager of the Sinton Hotel has offered his services as a mediator in the dispute over arbitration has been reopened between the business agent of the union and the theater owners, and it is believed that his services will not be needed. The stage hands are understood to be ready to agree to the demands of the theater owners on condition that the electrician and one or two others are kept on duty full time.

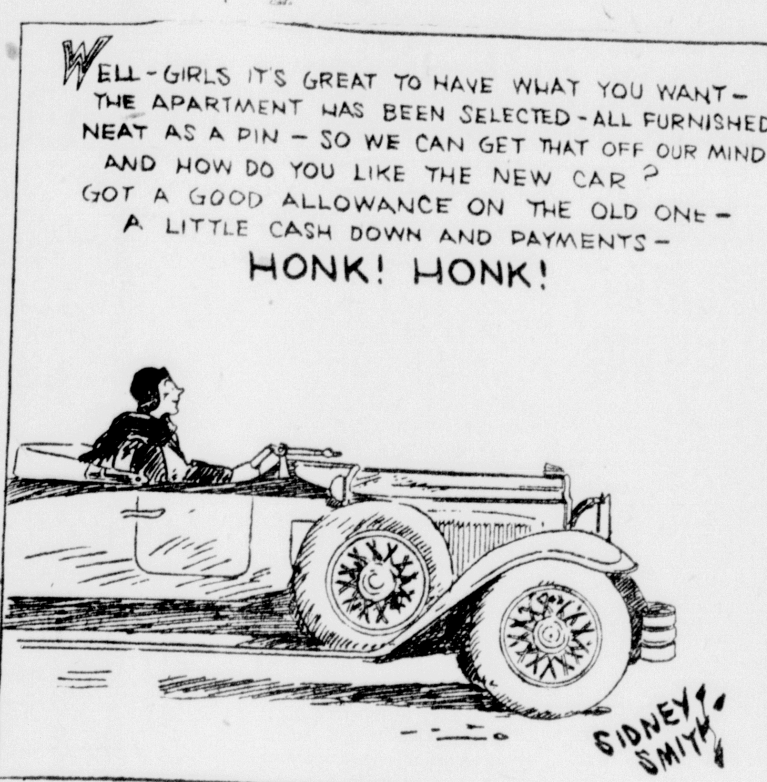

The popularity with which melodrama has been received by "we moderns" may suggest an opportunity for the Little Theater Guild, Christopher Morley and a group of intellectuals revived "The Black Crook" at a Hoboken Theater last year and the production went over big. Now the Civic Theater group at Cincinnati is presenting another melodrama of by-gone days, "The Drunkard."

second term as commissioner, was fourth with 1,033 votes. David Cherry, furniture dealer, serving an appointive term on the commission and seeking his first elective term, ran fifth with 890. Cherry led the ticket at the August primary in a field of ten candidates. He was appointed on the commission about nine months ago to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John W. Prugh, who became state building and loan superintendent. Yoder was sixth with 505 votes.

The new Xenia municipal court over which Attorney Smith will preside as judge, was created by an act of the last legislature and starts to function next January 1. It replaces the present mayor's court and the two Xenia Twp. Justice of the peace courts over which J. F. MacEwan and R. O. Copey have presided.

Attorney Smith was judge of Xenia's old police court during the eight years of its existence and until it was abolished as unconstitutional because the judge was appointed by commission and not elected as the law requires.

Unofficial returns from all of Greene County's forty-eight precincts disclosed the state tax amendment received a majority of more than 400 votes in this county. The vote was: yes, 3,341; no, 2,888.

The Xenia Twp. board of education also had a complete new deal in the only other contest of importance when two of the three members whose terms expired were defeated for re-election. New members of the township school board are: Frank A. Wolf, who led the ticket with 244 votes; Edna C. Bull, who ran second with 218 votes; and D. T. Harner, third with 208 votes. Defeated board members who sought re-election are: Frank Weaver, who polled 185 votes; and Harry Hagler, 167 votes; J. B. Harner was sixth with 137. C. E. Bone, another board member whose term expired, did not seek re-election.

No contests existed for the Greene County and Xenia city boards of education and Xenia Twp. board of trustees. J. D. Adair and J. J. Stout, members whose terms expire this year on the city school board, were re-elected without opposition, as were W. B. Bryson, Clifton Pike; A. L. Fisher, Bowersville, and J. E. Hastings, Cedarville, members of the county board.

Ward Grant, John C. Short and Graham Bryson had no opposition for re-election as Xenia Twp. trustees. R. E. Bryson was unopposed for re-election as clerk of the board.

With clear weather prevailing, the total vote cast in Xenia city was heavier than had been expected in view of advance indications of apparent apathy on the part of the electorate. The total vote recorded in the county, however, on the state tax amendment, the only state-wide issue which came before the voters, did not measure up to the eligible vote in this county by about 2,000.

HERE'S ONE CORNER OF TRIANGLE

FRED FLYNN

FRED FLYNN looks more like a popular matinee idol in the picture above than he does the devilish villain whose machinations furnish much of the heavy drama in "Tea for Three," the opening vehicle of the Little Theater Guild to be presented at City Hall Theater Friday night.

The belief must obtain that Flynn is an engaging and altogether pleasant and entertaining villain, and not one of the mustachioed deep-dyed slammers of the melodrama and the comic pages. He has an ample part full of lively lines and many intriguing situations as one of the three principal roles in the piece.

Marcus McCallister, the young harrister and Miss Margaret Little, whose engaging personality inspires these performers to their best efforts throughout, form the balance of the principals. Miss Helen Spahr and Bob Ellis are working their way up from the bottom in Guild productions by carrying in the visitors' cards, serving the caviar and doing these other incidental details that fall to the minor parts. Guild membership tickets are good for admission.

DEATH STRETCH ON SOUTH CHARLESTON PIKE IS REPORTED

LONDON, O., Nov. 6.—Another highway "death stretch" for Madison County is fast being established by allegedly careless motorists on the London-South Charleston Pike, west of this city, which is at present the detour road for the National Highway.

The first "death stretch" in the county, which was officially named that in a grand jury report, exists on the National Pike just north of here and west of Summerford.

The latter stretch, which is only two miles in length, has been the scene of between forty and fifty accidents in the past ten years. Hundreds have been injured. The new "death stretch" is ten miles in length, extending from London to South Charleston. Ten machines were seriously wrecked and approximately thirty others were "ditched" along the stretch in one evening. Barely a day passes that from one to ten automobiles are not wrecked. Fatalities, however, have been few.

ber could be consolidated and held. Apparently, so far as Virginia is concerned, they cannot be, and the result is of more than passing significance to North Carolina, Texas, and Florida, the other states of the old solid south which bolted Smith and went Republican last year.

"The Virginia election," said J. J. Shouse, acting chairman of the Democratic national committee, "is the culmination of a series of political episodes that all point to the same thing—restoration of Democratic harmony."

"It began with the choosing of a Democrat from the third congressional district of Kentucky, which had elected a Republican with Hoover last year; the victory of Ramspeck, the regular Democrat, over his Hooverite adversary in the Atlanta district in Georgia, which also went Republican in the national election; the election of Kvale, with Democratic endorsement, in Minnesota; and the phenomenal vote amassed by Hoidate, a Democrat, in Walter Newton's Minneapolis district. They all show which way the political wind is blowing."

"The Virginians are to be congratulated that they refused to be swayed by appeals to their prejudices and on their retention of a decent political perspective."

"The Republicans made the most of their opportunity in Virginia. Money was poured into Virginia in even greater volume than during the campaign which gave Virginia's vote to Hoover. Their effort has failed."

Republican leaders, while impressed by the Virginia result, had little to say other than that local and not national considerations governed the result.

Waterman, Republican-fusion candidate by 402,123.

Major La Guardia conceded defeat less than three hours after the polls closed, and sent a congratulatory telegram to Walker.

"I am completely satisfied with the result," smilingly declared Walker. "The vote is very emphatic. The unprecedented plurality is obviously an expression of approval by the people of the present administration."

Becoming serious, he added: "It is also an indication of the unwillingness of the people to be influenced by malicious, slanderous or libelous observations."

Mayor Walker himself did not get home until the wee hours this morning. After making two speeches over the radio last night and paying a visit to Tammany Hall, he went to his main headquarters in the Times Square district where he was accorded an enthusiastic reception by more than 1,000 men and women who had waited for hours for his appearance. They had been dancing, meanwhile, to the music of a swanky band.

"Jimmy" was kissed by a score of women as he pushed his way into headquarters through a lane of outstretched hands. He finally reached his wife, who had been patiently waiting. He gave Mrs. Walker two kisses and a hug.

"I'm delighted—it's marvelous," Mrs. Walker said to International News Service in commenting on the result. "It was just what I expected. Of course I'm happy—for my husband's sake, more than anything else."

CHAMBLISS LEADS FOR COMMISSION

STATE ADOPTS TAX AMENDMENT

PLAN CARRIES OHIO
BY LARGE MAJORITY
IN TUESDAY VOTING

Expect Margin May Be
200,000 Votes When
Tabulated

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—The proposed tax amendment to the Ohio constitution was approved by an overwhelming majority by the voters of this state at the election yesterday, it became definitely known shortly before seven o'clock this morning when 7,989 of the 9,002 precincts had reported to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

The vote at that time was: for the amendment, 690,800; against the amendment, 443,069.

Most of the precincts which have not as yet reported, are in rural districts, it was learned, and state officials estimated the 151,000 majority for the amendment would swell to at least 200,000 when the final tabulation will have been completed.

By passing favorably on the amendment, Ohio voters have agreed to abandon the "uniform tax rule," which has been a part of the state constitution for eighty years.

A huge burden has been thrown onto the shoulders of the legislature which will meet in 1931.

Briefly, the amendment provides:

1.—That the state legislature, after January 1, 1931, will have the power to classify types of property other than real estate and its improvements for taxation at different rates, provided that all real estate and its improvements are taxed uniformly.

2.—That no property shall be taxed for more than one and a half per cent of its true value in money except by vote of the taxing district.

The expected 200,000 majority is a large one in view of the generally light vote throughout the state. It is a momentous victory for the all-Ohio Tax League.

That organization was formed immediately after the last state legislature had passed a resolution to submit the tax amendment to the people. It consists of many large and influential groups, including the following:

Ohio Farm Bureau Federation; Ohio Building Association League; Ohio State Grange; Ohio State Association of Real Estate Boards; Ohio Bankers Association; Mortgage Association of Ohio; Ohio Newspaper Association; Motion Picture Theater Owners of Ohio; Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants; Ohio Hotels Association and the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

SENATE IS WASTING TIME WITH TARIFF BILL BLEASE SAYS

Demands Action On Resolution For Ad- journing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Declaring the senate is wasting time on a tariff bill that will never become law, Senator Cole Blease (D) of South Carolina today promised to demand action on his resolution to shut the bill aside until after December 3, thus bringing the special session to an abrupt close.

The resolution apparently was foredoomed to overwhelming defeat if it reaches a vote, but it was received with sympathetic interest by the "old guard" Republicans who would rather have no tariff than one written by the Democratic Progressive Republican coalition.

The South Carolina senator's proposal coincides in large degree with the views expressed by such regular Republicans as Senators Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, and Edge (R) of New Jersey. Blease vehemently denied he introduced the resolution as a result of conferences with other senators.

Admitting the resolution in its present form cannot be forced to a vote, he promised to change it if necessary to bring it within the parliamentary rule demanding expression by the senate.

Meantime Sen. Smoot (R) of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, was doing his best to drive the senate forward to the laborious task of disposing of individual tariff items, peace negotiations were being carried forward and "old guard" Republicans were seeking support for an adjournment over the Thanksgiving week-end.

PLANE FALLS; 6 DIE

GERMAN PASSENGER AIR LINER CRASHES DURING HEAVY FOG

Only Two Escape Death As Plane Bursts Into
Flames; Both Injured; Relative Of Kaiser
Among Injured

CATERHAM, SURREY, Eng., Nov. 6.—Six persons met almost instant death today when a tri-motored German plane of the Lufthansa air lines crashed in flames in a heavy fog at Whitehill, near here.

The plane, a luxurious passenger liner, was bound from Amsterdam to Croydon, England, London terminus of the Continental Air Lines.

Eight persons, four passengers and four men comprising the crew, were in the plane. Only two escaped death.

One was a passenger, Lieut-Commander Glen Kidstone, millionaire British sportsman. The other was the assistant pilot of the plane, Prince Eugene Von Schaumburg-Lippe, a relative of the former German Kaiser Wilhelm, who took up flying as a vacation when the overthrow of the German aristocracy deprived him of his wealth and position.

Commander Kidstone and the prince were seriously injured. Commander Kidstone suffered painful burns about the hands and face when the flames destroyed the wreckage of the glant craft.

The dead passengers apparently were all Englishmen returning from the continent. Their names were Jones, Milne and Jaspas.

Few details of the crash have as yet been learned. The pilot apparently lost control while plunging through heavy rain and fog within a comparatively few miles of his destination.

The accident is one of the most serious ever sustained by a plane of the Lufthansa, which has thrown a network of air lines all over Europe.

The wrecked plane was an all-metal Junkers, similar to the monoplane Bremen in which Captain Herman Koenig, the late Baron Von Hunsfeld and Commander James Fitzmaurice of the Irish Free State air force made a successful east to west crossing of the Atlantic.

Prince Von Schaumburg-Lippe is a member of the family of the ex-Kaiser who recently instituted divorce proceedings against her husband, Alexandre Zoubkoff, Russian emigre. The princess' marriage to Zoubkoff, who is thirty years her junior, resulted in her complete alienation from the former imperial family.

Dr. John Garland Pollard, above, staunch regular Democrat and supporter of Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 presidential campaign, was elected governor of Virginia Tuesday over Dr. William Mosley Brown, candidate of the anti-Smith faction, led by Bishop James Cannon Jr., after a bitter campaign.

Andrew Haninger, 63, prominent Xenian, died Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock at the Christian R. Holmes Hospital, in Cincinnati.

Death followed a long illness, resulting from complications. He became ill during the summer, but did not enter the hospital until seven weeks ago. Early this week it was planned to bring him to his home here, but he suffered a relapse and his physicians advised against his being moved.

Mr. Haninger was born in Xenia February 19, 1866, the son of Baptists and Helen Haninger, and spent practically all of his life in this city.

When a young man he learned the jewelry business as an employee of the store operated here by the late F. J. H. Schell, and later became a traveling salesman for a large New York wholesale jewelry firm. Still later he became associated with his brothers in the development of considerable copper mining interests in Arizona, and the Haninger brothers were prominent in the industry at Bisbee. With his brother George Haninger and his sister, Miss Minnie Haninger, he was a part owner of the Night Hawk Leasing Co., a mining property at Bisbee, Arizona, at the time of his death.

Mr. Haninger never married but had his home here with his sister, Miss Minnie Haninger at 139 S. Detroit St., although they spent their winters, for many years, in Bisbee. He was a heavy stockholder in the Cincinnati Baseball Club, owners of the Cincinnati Reds, a National League team, and took considerable interest in the sport. For many years he accompanied the team on its Southern training trips in the Spring.

In recent years he became enthusiastic as a golfer and was prominently identified with the Xenia Country Club here. His interest in the club was invaluable to that institution and, in his various capacities, he was credited with much of its success. His activities there will be greatly missed by the organization and his death will be mourned widely by a host of Xenia friends.

Mr. Haninger is survived by his sister, Miss Minnie, his brother George, of El Paso, Texas, who, with Mrs. Haninger and their children, are now in Xenia, four nieces and one nephew. Two brothers preceded him in death, John Haninger having died fifteen years ago, while Harry Haninger died ten years ago.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed and will be announced later.

DEMOCRATS GLAD AS RETURNS INDICATE SUCCESS IN VOTING

See Hope For Coming
Congressional Races
In Results

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Democrats in the capital who have not had much to crow about for the past year, were a pretty jubilant lot today as they surveyed the off-year election results.

While most of the contests yesterday were purely local in character, they nevertheless professed to discern a distinct "Democratic trend" in the balloting that augurs well for the congressional contests of next year.

Virginia's smashing return to the party fold was the high point of Democratic rejoicing.

Indications this morning were that Virginia has elected Dr. John Garland Pollard, a regular Democrat, to the governorship by the greatest majority ever given any candidate in the old dominion—this in the face of the heroic efforts made by the Republicans and anti-Smith Democrats to repeat and consolidate the Hoover victory in Virginia last year.

Analysis of the Virginia vote discloses that most of the Democrats who bolted Al Smith a year ago came back to the party fold yesterday in the governorship contest, and this fact is considered by Democratic leaders as indicative of what may be expected throughout the South.

The Republicans, aided and abetted by the Anti-Smith leaders, of whom Bishop James Cannon, Jr., was the most prominent, made a real effort to hold Virginia. Bishop Cannon promoted the coalition between the Republicans and the bolting Democrats, elected Prof. W. Mosley Brown as the gubernatorial candidate, and bombarded the state with appeals to "stand fast" and further "repudiate Smithism and Raskobism."

The result was an overwhelming defeat for Bishop Cannon, and probably the greatest regular Democratic victory ever achieved in Virginia. The vote for Prof. Brown was just about the normal Republican vote of the state.

The Republicans sent considerable money into the Virginia contest without avail. The organization work was the most intensive the Republicans have ever applied to any southern state. It was to be the big test of whether Republican victories in the south last November.

APPROVE BONDS FOR HOSPITAL

LORAIN, O., Nov. 6.—The $425,000 bond issue for a tubercular sanitarium for Lorain County was given substantial approval by voters yesterday, election returns showed today. The issue carried 7,435 for, to 1,625 against in the city of Lorain.

Passage of the issue insures the establishment of tubercular hospital with a capacity of seventy-five beds. It will increase the tax rate fourteen mills. Over a period of twenty years it will mean approximately eighty-two cents annually for each tax payer, according to estimates.

BOLEN ELECTED TO COUNCIL; QUILTS JOB

WILMINGTON, O., Nov. 6.—Despite the fact that Coach C. W. ("Shifty") Bolen of Wilmington College announced that he had resigned that position to become affiliated with an insurance company in Columbus, the voters in the third ward here elected him to represent them in the city council.

Bolen has been coach at Wilmington since 1923. He was graduated from Ohio State University and played varsity end on the football team there for three years.

"T'WAS SWEET" SAYS JIMMY

"Wise Cracking" Mayor Returned To Office By
Huge Majority

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Jimmy Walker, the mayor with the smile and the half-trigger wit—is in again.

His victory by 500,000 votes over Mayor Fiorello ("Fiery") La Guardia, Republican majority candidate, today proved his popularity.

It was the largest plurality ever registered by a New York candidate for mayor. Walker's landslide triumph carried practically the entire Democratic ticket into office with him.

What did Jimmy think of it? "It is sweet," he declared. During the campaign opposiponents called him the "wise-cracking mayor" and made sarcastic references to his party dress. His friends call Jimmy "America's best dressed mayor."

"I hope that now these smart-cracking people will just let me alone and let me do what I want to do," said the mayor for once letting his smile fade into stern sincerity.

"The election has shown two things in addition to sustaining my record. It has decided that a man can wear his own clothes and that a man in public life, holding public office, can smile if his smile is sincere."

H. L. BINDER

The four candidates above were successful in the municipal election Tuesday Dr. F. M. Chambliss, Harry Fisher and H. L. Binder being elected city commissioners in the order named. E. Dawson Smith will be judge of the new municipal court when it begins to function here January 1, superseding the present mayor's court.

THREE OF FOUR BOND ISSUES IN COUNTY DEFEATED BY VOTERS

Beavercreek And Caesar Creek School Projects And
Spring Valley Flood Control Proposal
Lose At Polls.

Three of the four bond issues aggregating $238,120 voted upon in Greene County at Tuesday's election were defeated.

Failure of a proposed issue of $155,000 to finance construction of a new consolidated high school building in Beaver Creek Twp. Rural School District to receive the necessary 55 per cent of the votes cast on the proposal creates a complicated situation in that school district. The issue received a majority of the votes cast, 380 to 332, but not 55 per cent and consequently failed to carry by twelve votes.

Indications are that Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education carries out an ultimatum made before the election, the high school charter will be taken away from the township at the close of the present school year. In that event it would be necessary to transport about 125 high school pupils to the nearest high school in some adjoining township.

Director Clifton had notified the township school board that its high school recognition would be refused unless improved educational facilities for the children were provided. If the bond issue had been approved, the present high school building which does not measure up to present-day requirements of the state educational department, in addition to outdated one-room schools in the district, would have been abandoned.

Another bond issue for $55,000 to erect an addition to the present Caesar Creek Twp. High School also received a majority of the votes cast on the proposition but not the needed 55 per cent and also lost. The majority of eight votes was insufficient, the vote being 141 in favor of and 133 against the issue.

Failure of this issue to carry did not come altogether as a surprise in view of strong sentiment in the school district against the proposal.

State Director Clifton has also recommended to the school board that regardless of whether the issue was approved, action on the project should be suspended until the state department has had an opportunity to make a survey of the situation.

Because the district has a small tax rate it was feared the extra expense would boost the tax rate too high and prove burdensome to the taxpayers. Centralization of schools will also result eventually in the township, it is said.

The third bond issue to be turned down Tuesday was one for $21,120, authorized by the Spring Valley village council to construct and improve levees, drains, ditches and water courses and provide flood protection for the town. The proposition lost by seventy-five votes, the vote being 125 against the plan and only fifty favoring it.

The only bond issue to receive a favorable vote was that at Fairfield village, where voters approved by a vote of 180 to 140 a $7,000 issue to construct a fire engine house and purchase fire-fighting apparatus.

CONRAD DEFEATED

George W. B. Conrad, colored, former Xenian, was apparently defeated on the face of early returns in his race for a seat on the Cincinnati city commission. He ran as an independent candidate against the charter ticket and the state advanced by the regular Republican organization.

FISHER AND BINDER ALSO VICTORIOUS; SMITH NAMED JUDGE

Tax Amendment Wins;
Township Schools Have
New Board

Following the trend of the state, Greene County favored the proposed tax limit amendment to the state constitution while Xenia voters elected three new City Commissioners and a judge to preside over the newly-created municipal court as the most important results of Tuesday's election.

Three vacancies on City Commission were filled by the election of Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, at present Greene County coroner; Harry M. Fisher, railroad engineer and former commissioner, and H. L. Binder, theater owner and first president of the Xenia Retail Merchant's Association.

By an unofficial margin of sixty-five votes Attorney E. Dawson Smith, Democrat, running on a non-partisan ticket, was elected judge of the new municipal court, defeating Attorney James P. Kyle, Republican, his rival candidate. The vote was: Smith, 1,322; Kyle, 1,257.

Defeated candidates for City Commission were: Karl R. Babb and David Cherry, present commissioners, and Dr. John A. Yoder, osteopath.

Dr. Chambliss, who has another year or two to serve as county coroner, will probably be required to resign this position by January 1 in order to qualify for a seat on the commission as no candidate, under terms of the city charter, may hold two elective offices at the same time. Dr. Chambliss led the ticket, polling 1,202 votes. Fisher was runnerup with 1,073 votes and Binder came in third with 1,059.

VIRGINIA RETURNS TO DEMOCRATIC FOLD WHEN POLLARD WINS

"Regulars" Victors Over
Cannonism In State
Voting

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 6.—Virginia came back to the Democratic fold with a bang today after her spectacular switch into Republican ranks a year ago.

Straggling returns from the back country only served to emphasize today the smashing victory won by Dr. John Garland Pollard, regular Democratic nominee for governor, over Prof. William Mosley Brown, who left a university chair to run for the governorship as a coalition candidate of the Republicans and the anti-Smith Democrats, led by Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

Dr. Pollard's lead this morning was approximately 65,000 votes and it may go to 70,000. It constitutes one of the largest majorities the old dominion ever gave any candidate for the office, and the size of the vote was a source of jubilation to Democratic leaders.

James H. Price, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, and John R. Saunders, for attorney general, were also on the winning ticket.

Dr. Pollard literally swept the state. He even carried the home town of Bishop Cannon, Blackstone, by an overwhelming majority. Pollard received 479 votes in Blackstone to sixty-three for Dr. Brown.

While Democratic leaders had expected victory, they had not expected it by any such smashing margin. Yesterday they had predicted 50,000 and privately hoped for 25,000.

They declared today that the vote means a striking repudiation of Bishop Cannon's political leadership in the state, for it was Bishop Cannon who mobilized the state against Smith a year ago, and who effected the coalition this year between the Republicans and the anti-Smith Democrats. Bishop Cannon sailed for South America a few weeks ago, after circulating the state with a final appeal to the electorate to elect Dr. Brown and "repudiate Smithism and Raskobism."

MAYOR RE-ELECTED

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—Mayor Charles H. Kline, Republican, today finds himself the first Pittsburgh mayor to be elected to succeed himself, following his victory at the polls yesterday over Thomas A. Dunn, good government Democratic candidate.

EXECUTOR SUES TO PREVENT DISPOSAL OF REAL PROPERTY

Attorney W. L. Miller, as executor of the estate of Martha Selver Oglesbee, deceased, has brought suit in Common Pleas Court requesting that the inheritance of George D. Oglesbee in his wife's estate be declared forfeited on the ground he has violated terms of the will.

It is asserted that Mrs. Oglesbee died December 21, 1921 and that her husband was to inherit her property and retain possession during his lifetime providing that he kept the farms in a good state of cultivation, made necessary repairs, kept up improvements, paid the taxes and did not sell the land. The executor claims that Oglesbee has violated provisions of the will by failing to keep up improvements, allowing taxes to become delinquent and that he has advertised the property for sale at a public auction to be conducted by Sheriff Ohmer Tate, November 23, contrary to the will.

As a result it is claimed Oglesbee has forfeited his rights and title to the property under the will. The plaintiff asks that he be authorized to carry out the disposition of the property at the termination of the estate held by Oglesbee. A temporary injunction was granted by the court enjoining Sheriff Tate from selling the property at the auction sale assigned for November 23.

Forty-three persons, including relatives who would benefit by a disposition of the estate, are named defendants in the action. They are: George D. Oglesbee, as widower of the decedent; Sarah Wendall, Margaret Morgan Shaw, Lester Harner, Roswell Harner, Alma May Breesee, Gertrude Swisher, Charles Selver, William Selver, Mollie Selver, Sarah Azella Jensen, Nettie Chapman, Elmer O. Selver, Cossette Selver, Pearl R. Selver, Raymond A. Selver, Abbie F. Hackman, Emma Bly Currie, William L. Bly, Jessie F. Bly, Hughie Bly; Minnie Hattie, Charles S. Bly, William A. Coffelt, Harry R. Coffelt, Myrtle B. Hallin, Frank Harner, Charles Harner, James Harner, Martin Harner and James B. Harner, Ruth Kirkpatrick, Charles W. Harner, Rachel Harner, children of Morgan Harner, deceased; Isabella Hutchinson, Betsy Jacoby, Rosanna Clark, Samuel B. Harner and Earl Russell, Fred King, Russell C. Faris and Ray Hagler and Ohmer Tate, sheriff of Greene County.

Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiff.

SALE APPROVED

Sale of real estate to Russel C. Ferris and Lela A. Ferris for $6700 has been confirmed by the court in the case of The Home Building and Savings Co. against A. E. St. John and others in Common Pleas Court. Distribution of the proceeds of the sale was ordered, the balance after payment of costs to be applied on the judgment of the plaintiff.

FORECLOSURE SUIT

Suit for $7,178.21, alleged due on an obligation or foreclosure and sale of mortgaged property, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by The Home Building and Savings Co. against W. Clifford Bull in Common Pleas Court. Attorney Harry D. Smith represents the plaintiff.

ROUTZONG IS AGAIN FAIRFIELD MAYOR; HUMES IS DEFEATED

By nearly a three to one majority, R. O. Routzong, mayor of Fairfield, was returned to that office for a third term, defeating a rival candidate, Harry J. Wilson, 227 to eight at Tuesday's election.

In all there were fifteen candidates seeking six vacancies on the village council. The winning candidates are: John Esterling, J. H. Dersch, William Lang, Adam Longstreth, D. G. Romsper and John Honaker. Honaker received 150 votes, Esterling, 142, Lang, 134, Longstreth, 130, Romsper, 121, and Dersch, 110. Longstreth and Lang were re-elected.

In a four-cornered fight for village marshal, William Humes was defeated for re-election by John Swadner, who polled ninety votes, nine more than obtained by Humes.

T. J. Smith was re-elected village clerk, defeating Edward Reynolds 193 to eighty-six. R. E. Bassett was retained for a third term as treasurer, beating J. A. Bishop, 194 to seventy.

C. F. Snediker, John Groth and C. F. Pfister were elected members of the board of public affairs from a field of seven candidates.

SUPREME COURT DENIES APPEAL FROM ASSESSMENTS ALONG PIKE

Appeal of Milton Shaw and others from a judgment of the Greene County Appellate Court favoring Miss Helen Dadds as county treasurer in a case involving the validity of certain assessments made in connection with the improvement of the Greene County portion of the Springfield-Xenia Pike, was rejected Wednesday by the Ohio Supreme Court. The court denied a motion of the plaintiffs to certify the record in the action.

Funds necessary for the paving of the highway in question were derived from an appropriation made by this federal government, state highway funds, local county funds and assessments upon property contiguous to the highway re-modelled.

It was claimed by the abutting land owners who brought an injunction suit in an effort to prevent collection of the assessments that they were not notified of the proposed improvement until after the contract for the project had been awarded and the work completed.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy held that a section of the state highway code was unconstitutional and granted the farmers a temporary injunction. His decision was reversed by the Greene County Court of Appeals.

It was also urged that the assessment of 10 per cent of the cost of the improvement upon the abutting property is illegal for the reason it is in excess of the benefits conferred upon the land by the remodeling of the pike.

The appellate court held that the first objection cited, the failure to notify land owners of the fact that an assessment would be made for a part of the cost, was not fatal to the assessments. The higher court ruled also that "it could not escape the conclusion that some advantage would flow to the lands so assessed for the improvement."

It was declared that the assessments were not excessive nor greater than the benefits derived by the property owners.

Durnbaugh headed the ticket with 307 votes, followed by Ankeny with 285 and Shank with 274. Ankeny and Shank were re-elected while Durnbaugh is a new member. George Hare, seeking re-election, was among the defeated candidates.

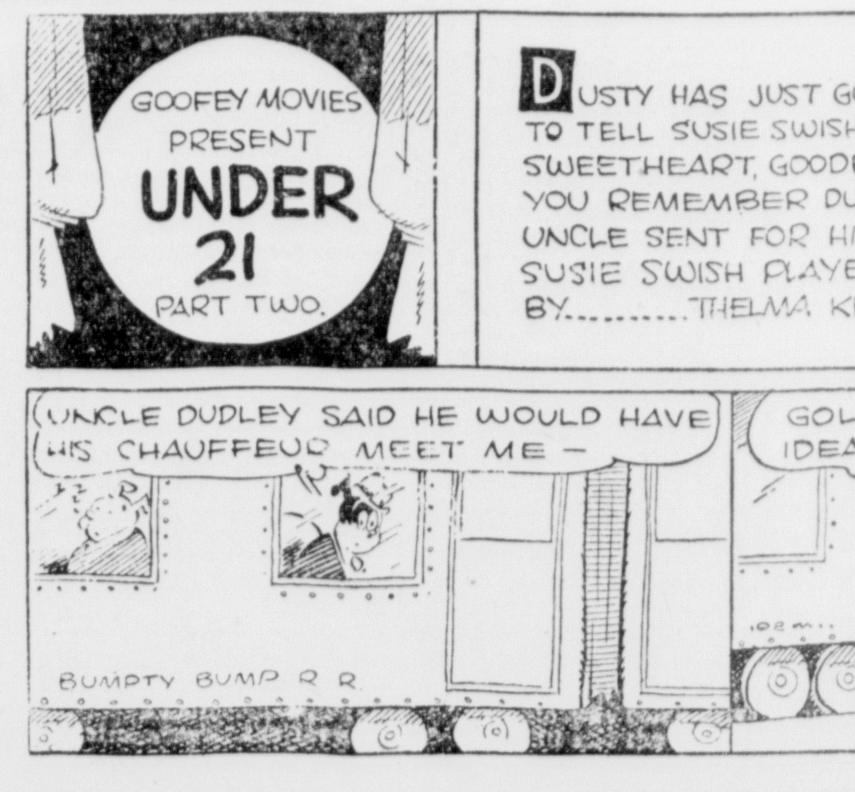

Jacob Stewart and Crawford R. Coy were elected constables of the township without opposition. C. S. Merrick was unopposed for election as township clerk and Rollin Varner, Grover Wolf and C. F. Greer were unopposed for township trustees.

GUILD TICKETS ARE NOW TRANSFERABLE COMMITTEE RULES

Tickets for the 1929-30 season of The Little Theater Guild of Xenia have been made transferable to members of the families or friends of Guild members. The action was taken at a meeting of the Guild executive committee Monday night.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of the Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation
(Written expressly for International News Service)

At least a rudimentary knowledge of meteorology, the science of the atmosphere, is essential to every flyer. With changes in the weather and with the causes of these changes he must be familiar. If he is to demure "cross-country flying," meteorology is a subject in which he should be thoroughly versed.

Six major atmospheric factors determine the weather: temperature, pressure, wind humidity, clouds and precipitation. These factors undergo both general and local change, periodically and non-periodically, and all have their different effects upon flying conditions.

For local flights, the airman considers chiefly the wind, which bears so directly on his take-offs, landings and speed; the visibility, which limits the extent of his vision; the clouds, whose altitude may restrict the height at which he may fly (ceiling).

He will learn that high wind often accompanies sudden changes in temperature or barometric pressure; that warm winds passing over cold ground or cold winds blowing over warm earth frequently creates fog; that various types of clouds (cirrus, stratus, cumulus, nimbus, etc.) are to be found at somewhat fixed altitudes in different seasons.

(Tomorrow's article of Plane Talk will discuss using weather knowledge in flight).

BANDIT WITH SHORT HAIR BEING SOUGHT

DAYTON, O., Nov. 6.—Ladies, if you are hard boiled and bobbed hair dresses your cranium, let this be a warning. Police are looking for just such a person. That is if you are a bandit.

Why? A well-dressed young man accompanying a hard boiled bobbed haired woman bandit held up and robbed a manager of a chain store here last night of $50.

They bound and gagged him and left him lying in the rear of the store where he was found by a customer.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The student council held a meeting Tuesday morning for the purpose of selecting a chairman and another representative for senior high and a junior high representative, to help with the Junior Community Chest drive. A tie resulted for the chairmanship and so another meeting was called Tuesday afternoon. At this time Alice Hagler was chosen chairman and Birch Bell representative. A tie for chairmanship had existed between these two but after a brief discussion, Miss Hagler was chosen. She is a senior. Birch Bell is a junior, obert Foley, an eighth grade boy, was chosen as junior high representative.

Mr. Woodruff explained the situation the "Review" is in at present and asked if something could be done to put the paper back on its feet. It was decided to run the paper as usual but with a little smaller size of paper. It was pointed out that just as much news could be printed as usual and that nothing would be lost out.

The Glee Club operaetta proved to be a success both on the stage and at the financial end. A good house attended the show and something over one hundred dollars is thought to have been cleared. The proceeds go to help pay for the new plane purchased last year. The next performance to be put on by the Glee Clubs will probably be a minstrel show the first of the year.

The senior girls held a polar cake sale Tuesday at 2:45 p. m. Quite a few of the ice cream pies were sold and the girls realized a small profit that they expect to use for the "annual."

About twelve students reported for debate tryouts Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Boyce and Mr. Hammerle are in charge and expect to announce the students to be used on the two teams within a few days.

Coaches Glenn Patterson and John Gibney will take their junior high and freshman squad to Dayton Oakwood Thursday afternoon. The boys have been going through some pretty stiff workouts this week and should be in good shape for the game. Their first game was pretty tough playing with a more experienced and bigger outfit, but they have corrected most of their faults in the past two weeks' practice and have been given a few signals. A definite lineup is not to be announced at present but it is pretty certain that Smith will start at center with Adair, Baker and Rails in the backfield.

Tickets for the Troy game have arrived and are on sale by the faculty manager for thirty-five cents. The Troy game is to be played on Thursday because of the teachers meeting at Dayton Friday and Saturday.

The work on the new bleachers is progressing rapidly and should be completed within a few days. They will be ready for occupancy for the Wilmington game. They will seat about four hundred and fifty persons.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUT OF THE HEART—A good man out of the good treasure of the evil treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil, for of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.—Luke 6:45.

A SEARCHING QUESTION—And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?—Luke 6:46.

THE TARDIEU CABINET

Andre Tardieu has solved the governmental crisis that kept France without a cabinet for 10 days by the formation of a government of the Centre, with support from the Right. After the overthrow of Aristide Briand's twelfth government on October 22, an attempt was made by Senator Clementel to create a government based on the Centre, with Left support. This failed, as did the attempt of Edouard Deladier to organize an out and out Left government. The Tardieu government is so composed as to give its leader hope that it will placate the conservative elements in the chamber, who led the recent revolt against Briand, without alarming the liberal-radical elements, who are expected to accept the retention of Aristide Briand at the foreign office as a guarantee that the policies of peace and conciliation upon which their hearts are set, will not be discarded.

The new government will have to face immediately the contentious problems involved in the evacuation of the German Rhineland, the application of the Young plan and movement for the further limitation of naval armament. Anyone of these questions may bring about its early downfall. The parties upon which the government is based, control about 300 out of 612 votes in the chamber of deputies. The majority necessary to enable it to carry through its program will have to be obtained from groups in the chamber that are more in sympathy with Briand than with Tardieu. This places the great conciliator again in the position he enjoyed in the last Poincare government, where he acted as a brake upon the fire-eating propensities of his chief.

Although Briand calls him "a man of the Centre," Andre Tardieu has strong leanings to the Right. Americans know him best as high commissioner for France to the United States during the war. As a writer and lecturer, Tardieu has done much to bolster the prestige of France abroad. Clemenceau used him during the war and later took him to Versailles, where he familiarized himself with the peace treaty in a way to enable him subsequently to place upon its constructions most favorable to France. A "patriot," whose nationalism at times has been tainted with chauvinism, Andre Tardieu is mentally far removed from Aristide Briand, whose policies are the chief bone of contention with which the new government will have to deal. Whether it will be compromise or crash will depend upon whether or not Tardieu's political spine is pliable, as well as strong.

A story is current regarding a 13-year-old Texan who built an experimental airplane and then tried to get somebody else to test it. That kid may have the makings of a great leader.

One way to get rid of interminable delays and interminable oratory in the senate would be to abolish the body, and let the members earn their livings on the Chaulauqua circuit, if they can.

Stripped of oratorical embellishment, the "arguments" of the senators who object to the "flexible" provision of the tariff law are a confession of envy of the executive.

WHAT A TRICK OF FATE!

There is always something pathetic in the labors of devices men exert to control the expenditure of hard earned money, long after they have meandered over the Golden Stairs. Sometimes Fate, The Practical Joker, steps in and takes a hand, as in the case of Robert Randall, who, upon the advice of Alexander Hamilton, set aside $25,000 to establish a refuge for sailors in their old age. A part of the estate was a farm, located in what now is a valuable section of Manhattan. With the years, Brother Randall's modest trust fund has increased to the amount of fifty million dollars. Trustees of the estate have been able to recruit only 100 sailors, who are supported by an income of more than a million dollars a year.

WHAT PUTT TINK?

He was one of the toughest-looking taxi men in town — and that's going some. He had a neck as thick around as Jumbo's hind leg. His brow was low; his ears, one of them caulked over, stuck out so far they gave his bulldog head the appearance of a loving cup.

The traffic lights flashed red. The car stopped. Nearby, on the curb, a vendor was peddling Gargantuan, multi-colored balloons. The one he had inflated and attached to his satchel, and another, the rubber of which he snapped incessantly to demonstrate its resilience, were probably the only two sound balloons in the lot.

My tough taxi man shifted his limp cigarette, delved laboriously into the depths of a trousers pocket and fished out twenty cents. "Hey, Buddy," he called to the vendor, "leav' us hab two o' dem."

I marveled at so sophisticated a stager falling for so ancient and palpable a fraud.

"Going to have a little Halloween of your own?" I ventured. "Nothin' doin'," he growled. "De're fer me two kids. Dey allus expects Pop t' bring 'em home 'ompin'." He turned and flashed a smile. "You know—what d'hell!"

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

THE HIGH SPOTS BEST

Five hundred members of an Ohio Sunday school on a recent Sunday copied the whole Bible in longhand. Each took a certain number of verses. This was an interesting stunt, and may have done some good in gaining publicity for the church. Otherwise the time might have been spent to better advantage.

Better to have concentrated on the high spots—the important and beautiful spots of the Bible—and to have paid less attention to the rest. Much of the history in the Bible can be read elsewhere. Some of the opinion therein is not applicable to the day and world in which we live. But there is a philosophy therein, and a statement of principles which are never too old or too well-known to be unworthy of concentrated study.

If every member of this Ohio Sunday school would pick—or have somebody pick for him—20 verses from the Bible and commit them irrevocably to memory, he would be using his time more wisely than to copy the whole book word for word.

REGULAR HABITS

Most of us are brought up to believe in the beauty and power of regular habits. We are made to think we should sleep at the right time, and always enough; rise early, at the same hour every morning; eat regularly, and fit ourselves into the hard and fast routine of daily existence. Maybe so. At least many of us are so. Come now the personal physician of King Alfonso, of Spain, and bears testimony. He says:

"The king is in beautiful health because he has never been a man of regular habits."

"My sovereign has never been a slave to regular diet, regular sleep, regular exercise, or regular anything else. He is not so stupid. Consequently, at the age of 43, he is in beautiful health, and he has never had a serious illness in his life."

"The only worry he causes me arises from the fact he is so busy he does not get enough sleep—in my opinion. Even kings should sleep eight hours, but he only gets about six and a half."

"Perhaps it is his moderation in eating and drinking which counteracts the bad effects of insufficient sleep. He eats less than half the amount the average man does, and he drinks very lightly."

SHIPPING OF MUNITIONS TO BELLIGERENT NATIONS SCORED

By HAMILTON FISH, JR., Congressman from New York (Hamilton Fish, Jr., was born at Garrison, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1888. He is a graduate of Harvard university where he studied law. Vice president of a general insurance company, he was elected to the New York assembly in 1914. In 1919 he was elected to congress to fill a vacancy from the 26th New York district and has been returned each term since. He is a Republican and a World War veteran.)

Munitions manufacturers should be prohibited from shipping their products to belligerent nations without the specific consent of congress.

I believe it was Woodrow Wilson who said: "When peace is conducted in the spirit of war, there will be no war." What could be truer, and how important it is to teach and preach the gospel of peace both by words and deeds.

Although the guns have been silent since the armistice we have had no peace. We have had nothing but international discord, bitterness and hatred.

The most difficult and vexing problem left after the World war was that dealing with the settlement of reparations. The Dawes' plan was a step in the right direction but it was merely a stop gap, as no definite sum was fixed or any agreement reached to withdraw the allied troops from Germany. The plan worked out last spring through the unremitting efforts, ability, tact and patience of that great American, Owen D. Young, received the practically unanimous approval of all the nations haggling after the spoils of war from Germany and was even acclaimed as an economic miracle in Berlin.

France, which had hitherto declined to ratify the Mellon-Berenson war debt agreement, did so almost immediately, showing that the French government was simply waiting to have the reparation question settled for all time before committing itself to an adjustment of the war debt with the United States. The Young plan scaled down the $9,000,000,000 present value, fixed annual payments, and reduced a number of irritating conditions which leave the door open for progress toward reconciliation.

Owen D. Young is merely a private American citizen, but he has accomplished more than any general or statesman in the world to end the war after the war in the mad scramble over German reparations.

There is no sound reason why we should permit our munitions makers for sake of profit and greed to ship munitions to belligerent nations without the consent of congress. If we must have wars in the future let it be in defense of the United States and not in defense of war profiteers or the greed of munition manufacturers.

IN THE AGE OON SEASON IS ON!

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Your hair is entirely dependent on the scalp for beauty and health.

If your scalp is in a clean, healthy condition, your hair will immediately reflect it. The scalp, like any other part of the body, needs exercise in order to keep its youth and beauty. Unfortunately, too, many women ignore the fact of this need and permit the scalp to get very tight. As a direct result, the hair becomes dry and is inclined to early grayness.

The purpose of the exercise is to stimulate circulation, and there has been no recent discovery which brings better results than a thorough brushing with a long, narrow brush with long bristles. Brushing, in order to be beneficial, should be out and away from the head, not down, as most women do it. Bobbed hair needs as thorough brushing as long hair.

Massage of the scalp can be best done just after the hair has been shampooed. Scalp massage can be fairly vigorous. Here is a simple correct method for performing this massage. Place the palms of the hands flat against the sides of the head and move the scalp with a full, round movement. Then massage sections of the scalp with the tips of your fingers, with a rotary movement, holding your fingertips steady and making the scalp move. Dry massage, in between shampoos, is wonderfully invigorating. From five to ten minutes in the morning, before combing your hair, and at night before going to bed, will bring your hair back to glowing health. You will actually be able to see the healthy sheen increase as time goes on.

While some hair has a tendency to early grayness, more than other hair, massage will help to preserve the pigment of the hair. The stimulation of the scalp sets the blood circulating and feeds the little roots of the hair.

I think you will be more than compensated for the effort expended, since healthy hair is beautiful hair, and beautiful hair adds charm and distinction to your appearance.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Nov. 4.—Wall Street has been experiencing quite a series of shakeups in recent months, but here in Washington hardly any attention was paid to them.

Once or twice there was a bit of congressional grumbling about the federal reserve board. However, it was political; not from folk who knew anything as to real business conditions. The latter were not sufficiently interested even to advise the public not to worry.

But the shock that hit the market toward the end of October was too strong to be pooh-poohed.

That brought out a flock of "statements."

The nation's leaders, from President Hoover on down, evidently sensed considerable popular nervousness, which they deemed it desirable to allay as promptly as possible.

It was not a panic; only a momentary speculative flurry—business is fundamentally sound—building has fallen off slightly, but that's simply seasonal—business is fundamentally sound—Wall Street and the rest of the country have nothing in common anyway—the temporary slump in grain prices has no genuine significance—prosperity's tide is still rising—business is fundamentally sound.

Thus the statements.

Without claiming to know much about commerce and finance, never, in 35 years' experience as a newspaper man, have I seen a violent outbreak of reassuring statements from the country's business leaders, that something darn serious was not the matter.

When a seeming setback actually is of no particular importance, the high moguls keep quiet—perhaps fearing to start trouble by suggesting it.

When the outlook appears to them to be decidedly billious—and they figure, I suppose, that there is everything to gain and nothing to lose with a barrage of reassurance.

My suspicion always has been—

hands flat against the sides of the head and move the scalp with a full, round movement. Then massage sections of the scalp with the tips of your fingers, with a rotary movement, holding your fingertips steady and making the scalp move.

poll believe.

I know for a fact that they do not understand our last few years' period of so-called prosperity, because a few of them have been candid enough to tell me so.

It has been an unprecedented period. Consequently they have nothing in the past to compare it with, and draw conclusions from. They have thought that maybe it was a new thing in the world's history—the product of machinery, of our improved industrialism, of up-to-date discoveries, of the federal reserve system and what not—and bound to last forever.

And yet they have not been certain it was not a huge boom, which could not be depended on.

They have mostly gone on the assumption (because they preferred to that) that was the genuine article. Earlier stock market slumps were not energetic enough to jar them out of this complacency. October's last one did—it sent them pell mell to their stenographers, dictating reassuring statements.

They may prove to have been mistaken. Maybe everything is all right and the latest stock market earthquake was not a warning of a let-up in prosperity any more than the earlier ones were.

All the same, the nation's leaders were alarmed this time—or they would not have been so reassuring.

A short session of slightly tighter times that we have seen in the last seven or eight years might be a blessing in disguise, at that.

For quite awhile heretofore big business could have carried off a protest; nobody would have dared to say anything, lest he cast a blight on prosperity. Such oodles of prosperity that public crookedness is permitted to flourish, uninterfered with, almost too much of a good thing.

For instance, in spite of all the howling "out our scandals, the country's first conviction in connection with this was Albert B. "The other day—and that followed the great market crash.

Of course, the fact that conviction soon after the Wall Street earthquake was only a coincidence.

Still with a trifle less prosperity on our minds for a brief space, perhaps we would have leisure to run down a few other grafters who ought to have been attended to long ago.

This menu was planned for three people. I am enclosing a recipe for Maryland chicken pies to finish the leftovers of chicken the second day.

Today's Recipes

Wheat Cakes With Sweet Corn—This recipe was given by an old Negro mammy at a Maryland tavern, as was the recipe for Maryland chicken pies. Two cups prepared wheat cake flour, one and one-half cups water, one-half cup sweet corn. Leftover canned sweet corn may be used from the preceding supper. Beat this to a well mixed batter and fry on a hot griddle. Serve with maple syrup.

Roast Chicken With Bacon Slices—One chicken (old), six bacon slices, salt. Cover the chicken with salted water overnight. Pour off part of the water the next morning and cook until fairly tender. Remove to a roasting pan, placing three strips of bacon underneath the chicken. Pack bread dressing mixed with the chopped giblets around the chicken. Cover the breast and neck with the remaining three bacon slices and roast one hour.

Maryland Chicken Pies—One and one-half cups leftover flaked chicken, one cup thick white sauce, three teaspoons butter substitute. Mix in order given and line individual pie pans with a flaky pastry. Fill with chicken mixture and cover with steampantry, piercing the top well or steam will make the pies soggy. Bake as quickly as possible and brown well.

Suggestions

Cleaning Screens—Before storing the screens for the winter, treat them in this way and the screens will be in good order for the next season: Cover a small whisk broom with a cloth saturated with gasoline, and brush the screens well.

Add sugar and cook for ten minutes or until the mixture is thick. Pour into sterilized containers while the mixture is hot. Seal with paraffin.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.
—Jewish Proverb.

"My little girl is five years old and is very much underweight. She has no appetite and resents having to go to sleep, although I have used every means of inducement, and force. She has an intestinal infection—ameba, the doctors call it. She has apparently had it for a long time, but it was not discovered until recently. They gave me medicine for her, but did not give me any special diet. Please advise me as to diet and treatment. Do you think a child in this condition ought to go to school? She is an only child. Mrs. O."

It may be possible that your child's undernourishment is due to her infection of the intestinal tract. And, then again, it may be possible that it is the other way around; the infection may persist because of her undernourishment. Undernourishment means a deficiency of the vitamins as well as other elements in the diet, and where there is a deficiency (especially of the vitamins), the resisting power of the intestinal tract and the other organs is so much lowered that infections can gain a foothold.

The child's finicky appetite in turn may be due to mismanagement on your part. It's too bad that all mothers cannot take a course in child psychology. Well, what you must do is to first see that she gets a plentiful supply of vitamins, especially the growth vitamin A, and the appetite-stimulating vitamin B. The growth vitamin A can get more of, by having more cream and green leaf vegetables and some cod liver oil, and the vitamin B she can get by having more raw fruits and vegetables (especially tomatoes—raw, canned or dried—fresh cabbage and spinach), whole grain breads and cereals instead of the refined. I would see that she has a good sized dishful of these vegetables every day.

Of course, it is much better to get the vitamin B in the fruit and vegetables which also supply mineral elements and other food elements, but if there has been a great deficiency of the vitamin over a long period, it may be wise to give her this vitamin in concentrated form as is found in yeast and yeast extracts for a period.

I think you will find that she will sleep more when she eats better, and even though she doesn't sleep, she should lie down for a rest period for an hour, twice a day.

Your little girl is under school age. Whether she would be improved by going to kindergarten or not, I cannot say. It may be that the happy association with other children would be beneficial to her. If there is a nutrition class that she can go to, I certainly would recommend that. She must be taught, as all children should be, the importance of being very careful in washing the hands after going to the toilet, and in case of any infection, it is doubly important, both for the protection of others and to prevent re-infection.

I haven't run the foundation for children for a long while. I get wonderful results from it. Here 'tis.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your advice to folk who are in trouble, so I am coming to you with my share, too. I am a woman in my early thirties. I have loved a man for five years. I would give anything to forget him. For him to smile at me gladdens my heart. I blush like a schoolgirl and my heart beats like a trip hammer when I see him.

"I have reluctantly absented myself from places where I knew he would go, only to find I loved him just the same. Once I met him on the street and he smilingly told me he still loved me. Please can you suggest a way to help me?"

"Does he know I care like this? No. My husband used to step out on me but now is a changed man, wants to stay home and lavish affection on me. He nearly broke my heart by his unfaithfulness in former years. Don't misunderstand me, dear Virginia Lee, I am not a moral crank. I don't mean to give in to this love that's in my heart. I am waiting anxiously for your answer."

"YOURS TRULY."
You don't say whether your friend is married or free nor how well you know him and how you have been associated. It seems, if he is free and wants you that you might divorce your husband and marry him. Your husband was untrue to you, he should remember.

But I don't think you will. You are not that kind of a woman. You throw your husband over, I judge from your letter, to get even, and you probably wouldn't enjoy your life with this other man, thinking you had left your husband and made him unhappy.

All that is left to do is to keep the love you feel for this man deep down in your heart and go right ahead as you are, doing your duty as wife and housekeeper, and waiting to see what life will bring.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl of 18 and am in love with a sailor boy. He is sailing for Cuba, and when he comes back, in three weeks, we are going to marry."

My mother died a month ago and I live with my father and brother. My brother is always nagging me and makes it unbearable for me. I cannot stand it any longer. Can you give me some advice? I am so terribly lonely since mother died.

"Please Virginia Lee, help me. I cannot give him up because I love him too much and I am so happy when I am with him. What shall I do?"

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

HOLA, THE HUNT!

When the circle was completed Grass-Green stepped inside the ring and blew a shrill blast on a tiny horn. At the signal Stag and Rose took their places, one on either side of Grass-Green.

"The hunt is on. Hola, the hunt!" shrilled Grass-Green, loudly. And all the beetles answered, "Hurrah, the hunt is on!" Again the band turned up, and two by twos the beetles grouped themselves in line behind the three big beetles in the center of the ring. A second blast on the tiny horn, and out of the circle, down the savanna path, scurried Grass-Green and Stag and Rose. After them scuttled the others.

Peter wanted to see the fun and ran as fast as he could to catch up with the hunters. But the clumps of grass in his way stopped him. He bumped into them and fell flat on his back. Just for spite I hope none of the beetles bag any game. Come to think of it, nobody told me they are after."

Peter was in no good humor. He little would he have been scratched and now he was to be bumped and fall flat on his back. Just for spite I hope none of the beetles bag any game. Come to think of it, nobody told me they are after."

that the boy fell on his nose in the gravel. When he picked himself up the beetles were so far ahead that he knew his two legs would never carry him to them. The beetle who had tripped him never stopped. A Bird seemed to have forgotten about him in the excitement of the moment.

"Impolite little thing," murmured Peter, his feelings hurt at Lady Bird's neglect. "She, at least, might have stayed by me, since it was she in the first place, who invited me to the hunt. As for the chap who bumped into me—wait 'till I catch him! Just for spite I hope none of the beetles bag any game. Come to think of it, nobody told me they are after."

Fast, hard-hitting backs who can mix pretty punts and bullet-like forward passes with their ball-carrying are the lads who furnish color for the folks who fight for the fifty-yard line seats, and the Buckeye Conference has introduced a promising lot of sophomores who fill that description this fall.

Ohio Wesleyan has outstanding sophomore backs in Roderick Campbell, Bellefontaine, halfback, and Edgar Westfall, Dayton, quarterback. These boys are the best passers on the Bishop squad and are good punters. As ball-carriers both are fast and clever while Campbell, who weighs 180 pounds when in top condition, is a terrific line plunger. Robert Morton, Xenia, another sophomore halfback, is the best punter on the Bishop squad and a shifty runner. Howard Gnaven, Springfield, a great defensive fullback who gives promise of becoming an equally great line-smasher, completes the Bishops' stellar sophomore backfield.

At Miami, a sophomore, Robert Corry, an all-Chicago halfback, weighing around 185 pounds, has already clinched a place in the "Big Red" backfield. He is a triple threat player. Tom Castillo, Springfield, is another sophomore back who will be heard from at Miami. Castillo is only five feet four inches tall and weighs 136 pounds, but many Oxford fans believe him to be the best all-around backfield man who has made his appearance there in a decade. He is a sure tackler, a clever runner and a good passer and kicker.

Wittenberg boasts a prize assortment of sophomore backs and some of the Lutheran lettermen may get a chance to watch lots of football this season. Among them are two fine fullbacks, Stanley "Saint" Plummer, Coshocton, a 180-pounder, and Charles Baker, Bucyrus, a six-footer who tips the weighing machinery at 170 pounds. Coach Stobbs bumps into a likely sophomore halfback most anywhere he goes on the Wittenberg practice field. "Click" Peterson, Elkhart, Ind., rugged, fleet and shifty, is as highly touted as any although the class also includes Collin Lanning, Cleveland; William Bricker, Mt. Vernon, and William Price, Massillon, brother of the famous "Jimmy" last season's all-Buckeye quarterback, Douglas Smith, Cleveland, is a big soph quarterback who may also develop.

Ohio, Denison and Cincinnati have also uncovered their share of speed and smash among the sophomore backs as the season advances.

No less authority than Coach Gauthier, of Ohio Wesleyan, declares that the 1929 Ohio University football team is the best Ohio U. has ever produced. Gauthier ought to know after seeing the Bobcats send the Bishops off to a bad start in the Buckeye Conference schedule this season, was particularly impressed with the play of Kenner and Young, whom he says are highly accomplished players.

Basketball practice in the Buckeye Conference may be started this year whenever the respective coaches choose to begin, according to a recent ruling of the athletic directors. In previous years basketball practice has been barred until the close of the football season.

Here is some good or bad news for the "Park-O-Lights." The foot ball team representing Shawnee Park and environs this season is to have opposition next Sunday afternoon if it accepts a challenge hurled in its general direction Tuesday. Ben Lickliter, well-known drug-store cowboy, having recently come into possession of a football, announces the formation of the "Night Owls," of which he (having the football) will, of course be captain and safety player. Ben dares the "Park-O-Lights" to show up for a game in the park Sunday.

Detroit and Windsor police have instituted a search for William J. Keyes, above, 24-year-old president of a glider manufacturing company and son of W. E. PRESIDENT HOOVER SNUBS JOHNSON; IS OMITTED AT DINNER

Out In Cold At Social Function

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Tongues were wagging all over Washington today over President Hoover's failure to invite Senator Hiram Johnson (R) of California, to the formal dinner given at the White House last night for Ambassador Charles G. Dawes.

Every other member of the senate foreign relations committee who was in the city was asked except Johnson, and the cut was so marked as to bring into open discussion the long-standing coolness between the two men.

While Washington has long known that there is no cordiality between the two Californians, the exclusion of Senator Johnson from what was regarded as a purely formal function caused a stir in official and social circles.

No explanation was forthcoming from the White House today for the omission of Johnson's name, and as for the senator he had only this to say:

"Of course, I have no comment to make."

The coolness between the two goes back a number of years. In 1920, Hoover's friends made an effort to carry the state for him in the presidential primary at a time when Johnson was being projected as California's "favorite son" in the Chicago convention. Johnson won easily.

In the last campaign a compromise was effected whereby Johnson did not oppose the California delegation going to Kansas City for Hoover in return for the Hoover managers in California not opposing Johnson's return for the senate. After the nomination, Johnson conferred with Hoover, but thereafter pursued an independent course and while tacitly supporting him made few speeches.

Since Hoover has been in the White House Johnson has opposed the administration in many of its policies. He has fairly consistently voted with the Democratic-Insurgent coalition in the senate on tariff which Hoover opposed so vigorously, and also voted to deny the flexible tariff powers which the president requested.

MAY DROP MURDER CHARGE IN CASE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 6.—With testimony of Sam Epstein, steward of the steamer Creole, supporting the stories of others who state that Jack Kraft leapt to his death, the case today appeared ready to be dropped.

In view of Epstein's story yesterday the possibility looms that John McGouldrick, second mate of the steamer, will have the murder charge against him dismissed when he is arraigned tomorrow, it was indicated by District Attorney Leander Perez.

McGouldrick was indicted by a grand jury for the murder of Kraft following testimony given by Gloria Rouzer, the "lone girl" of the death mystery.

Epstein was asked after he occupied the witness stand in the Pointe-a-la-Hache court house for more than two hours. Throughout his testimony he insisted Kraft leaped over the steamer rail after he had quarrelled with Miss Rouzer.

ELECTORS WRITE IN NAMES IN TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARD VOTE

Morton Dallas, farmer, Lincoln R. Gibbs, professor of Antioch College, and E. Kenneth Fogg, farmer, were elected to fill the three vacancies on the Miami Twp. Board of Education at Tuesday's election.

Unusual interest had been manifested in the contest for positions on the Miami Twp. school board due to the fact that the nominating petitions of six of the seven candidates who entered the race were rejected by the board of elections.

Rejection of these petitions left only Morton Dallas, whose name was the only one to appear on the ballots. However, the names of four other candidates, including three whose petitions had been held invalid, were written in on the ballots by voters.

Dallas led the ticket, polling 367 votes. Prof. Gibbs came second with 314 and Kenneth Fogg was third with 295 votes. Fogg was elected but the other two winning candidates are new members.

Defeated candidates were two women, Mrs. Carl Drake, who obtained 213 votes and Mrs. D. A. Brewer, who received one less. Mrs. Brewer was formerly a member of the Yellow Springs village school board, which was dissolved at a special election held a few months ago and joined the contiguous Miami Twp. rural school district.

Five candidates sought the position of trustee of Miami Twp., and with three vacancies on the board to be filled, F. W. Johnson, M. A. Ault and C. C. Martin were believed to have been the winning candidates, although one township precinct was unreported when the announcement was made by a village official.

Towne Carlisle was unopposed for township clerk and George A. Baker was the only candidate for constable.

COUNTY VOTES TO ABANDON TWO MILL LEVY FOR ROAD PURPOSES

By an unofficial majority of about 350 votes, Greene County voters disapproved of continuance of the present county road levy of two mills for another five years at Tuesday's election.

The total vote for the forty-eight precincts was announced by officials of the board of elections as 3,242 in favor of the levy and 3,595 against its continuance.

The levy has been in effect for ten years and has created funds with which county road officials have carried forward improvements of county and township roads.

Continuance of this road work had depended upon a favorable vote on the levy. Failure of the levy to carry means that available funds for road work in this county will be reduced by $112,000 a year.

From investigation of the funds according to the county for road building purposes from gasoline tax and motor vehicle fees, it is

NARAGON VICTOR IN THREE CORNERED CONTEST IN OSBORN

In a three-cornered fight for mayor of the village of Osborn, W. T. Naragon was elected over two opponents by a majority of nearly 250 votes Tuesday. Naragon received 325 votes against seventy-eight accorded A. J. Gerlaugh and fifty obtained by Theodore F. Longenecker, his rival candidates.

Naragon succeeds Harry E. Frahn, who has served as mayor of the village for a number of years but who was not a candidate for re-election.

Another warm contest in Osborn centered over the position of marshal with H. Glen Sheppard emerging victorious in a four-way fight. He was re-elected, receiving 246 votes. J. B. West, Jesse A. Banford and Floyd Watts were the defeated candidates.

Eight candidates filed for six vacancies on the village council and the winning candidates were: George W. Troutman, W. T. Groner, Charles F. Hoke, F. A. Kendig, Joseph L. Vost and F. C. Massey. William A. Schneider and Paul Carlisle were the defeated candidates.

Harry Dellinger, Charles E. Semler and Harry K. Miller, candidates for the village board of public affairs, had no opposition. Sumner S. Schauer and Mrs. Ella F. Moore were unopposed for clerk and treasurer, respectively.

The position of constable of Bath Twp. was sought by seven candidates and the two elected were W. A. Schneider and H. Glen Sheppard. In a field of five candidates Fred Shellabarger, Clarence E. Storek and Charles V. Mitman were elected members of the township board of trustees.

William C. Cooper and H. R. Armstrong were elected members of the township school board, the defeated candidate being Homer L. Morgan.

Receiving 440 votes, Adam E. Longstreth was elected Bath Twp. Justice of the peace over S. H. Pierce, who obtained 337 votes. R. O. Routzong, mayor of Fairfield, was unopposed for clerk of the township trustees board.

Candidates for six village council vacancies elected without being opposed were: H. R. Corry, A. B. Brewer, Jay Filson, Edwin Wiggington, A. W. Reed and C. C. Eckman.

Harry Arns was elected marshal; Florence C. White, treasurer and Rosa Eckman, clerk.

MAYOR REID WINNER OVER MINISTER IN JAMESTOWN VOTING

Seeking his first elective term of office in opposition to the candidacy of the Rev. H. S. Snyder, pastor of the Church of Christ, W. E. Reid was elected mayor of Jamestown at the election Tuesday by a substantial majority.

Reid, as president of the village council, became acting mayor of the village about a year ago upon the death of Dr. F. W. Ogan and has since been serving in that capacity.

An extra tax levy of three mills for three years to meet current expenses of the village school district was also approved by the voters by a safe majority.

Fred L. Nelson, Milton A. Oliver and Ernest Rockhold were elected members of the village school board. Rockhold's name was written in by the voters and he defeated Francis H. Clark for the third vacancy on the board.

Six candidates who filed for that many vacancies on village council had no opposition. A. J. Barnes, A. L. Smith, N. N. Hunter, W. A. Thomas, W. A. Bryan and George Sanders were elected to the council seats but a vacancy will exist because of the fact Bryan has moved to Codrille.

John Baughn, former deputy sheriff of Greene County, was re-elected village marshal, defeating Al Zeiner, former marshal, whose name was written in on the ballots by voters. Baughn defeated Zeiner for village marshal two years ago.

Charles W. Moorman was elected treasurer and A. V. Whitehead, clerk, without opposition.

Russell Spahr, Roscoe E. Turner and W. B. Clemmer were elected to the three vacancies on the Silver creek Twp. school board. G. M. Jenks, a fourth candidate, was defeated. C. D. Lackey, C. S. Bullock and Charles A. Robinson, trustee board candidates, had no opposition.

E. H. Smith defeated Wilfred A. Weimer for clerk of the township board.

Receiving 440 votes, Adam E. Longstreth was elected Bath Twp. Justice of the peace over S. H. Pierce, who obtained 337 votes. R. O. Routzong, mayor of Fairfield, was unopposed for clerk of the township trustees board.

Poems that Live

GOOD-NIGHT

GOOD-NIGHT. Good-night. Ah, good the night That wraps thee in its silver light. Good-night. No night is good for me That does not hold a thought of thee. Good-night.

Good-night. Be every night as sweet As that which made our love complete, Till that last night when death shall be. One brief "Good-night," for thee and me. Good-night.

8 Weir Mitchell (1829-1914)

Harry Arns was elected marshal; Florence C. White, treasurer and Rosa Eckman, clerk.

Voters of the village school district also approved an extra tax levy for three years for school purposes, proposed by the Clinton board of education. The increased rate is for school purposes to provide additional funds for current expenses. The levy carried by a small majority.

King of Hedges

William J. Keyes

LONDON, O., Nov. 6.—Think of the distance from New York to Denver by air line and you have a picture of the hedge fence William J. Keyes, of London, has planted and trimmed in the past forty years—a total of more than 2,000 miles.

The London hedge trimmer de luxe has planted and trimmed practically all of the hedge fence in this section for so long that he is looked upon as the "king" of the business.

Began in Tiffin He began his special work years ago in Tiffin, O., and later located here, where he superintended the planting of miles and miles of hedge fence, using the Osage orange plants for his work.

When the hedge began to grow beyond the size and height desired, Keys found a big job facing him. He has handled it without aid for the past thirty years, and in that time walked thousands and thousands of miles, back and forth along the fences and back and forth to work—for he still uses the old-fashioned walking "method" of transportation.

Two Tools He uses only two tools—a sharp knife resembling a corn cutter's knife, and large shears. Twice a year he visits the hedges of his section, trimming them as only an artist can.

Keys takes great pride in his work, and contends that the hedge make the best fence in the world if properly set and trimmed.

DEADLY GAS RELEASED IN BLAST

One man was killed and three injured in the explosion, above, in the heart of the Salt Lake City, Utah, business district, which occurred when a spark caused the ignition of celluloid films. WEALTH COMES TO TOWN AS WATER TURNS TO OIL

"BLACK GOLD" in the PECOS RIVER

When the drinking water of Red Barn, Tex., near San Angelo, turned to oil, operators discovered oil was seeping from the big wells into a gravel strata only a short depth below the top of the ground. Oil began to seep out along the banks of the Pecos river, above, that the bed was covered with "flowing gold." Now shallow wells dot the landscape and the oil, which has been diverted into ditches, is taken out by small pumps.

RICHARDS ELECTED CEDARVILLE MAYOR IN TUESDAY VOTING

A. E. Richards, druggist, was elected mayor of Cedarville for his first term without opposition at the election Tuesday. He succeeds D. H. McFarland, who was not a candidate for re-election.

Six candidates for the village council had no opposition. Although Ralph Wolford's name appeared on the ballot and he was elected a councilman, he had previously resigned the position to become a member of the village board of public affairs. Charles Crouse had been appointed his successor on the council and will continue to hold his council seat because of the withdrawal of Wolford, who will not attempt to qualify as a member of council. Others elected to the council are: Leo Anderson, L. F. Tindall, Bert McFarland, John W. Ross and J. A. Stormont.

NATIVE PINE TREES ARE AVAILABLE FOR USE AT CHRISTMAS

A number of native pine trees from Pike County, to be used for yard decorations at Christmas time, have been obtained by the Xenia Garden Club for distribution here at cost.

The club has brought a truck load of the trees, complete with roots so they can be planted, and is anxious to distribute them to Xenians who will plant them in their front yards and decorate them for the Christmas holidays.

The club points out that the simple decorations of strings of popcorn and cranberries make the trees attractive at little cost and that they can be eaten by the birds when they have served their purpose. Now is the time for planting evergreens, the Garden Club says, and while the native pines may not be as handsome as others, they cost much less than the other varieties.

The club is arranging to plant some of these trees on principal entrances to the city and will decorate them for the holidays. One will be planted on E. Main St., one on the Dayton Ave. approach, three in the W. Main St. parking space, two in the Home Ave. park and two near the stand pipe. Xenians who want trees are asked to call Mrs. Charles A. Kelbie, president of the club.

Cupid in an Aeroplane

Elopers are old as time itself, but aeroplane elopers are more unusual than the common variety. Here is Florence Chapten, pretty Mount Clemens, Mich., miss, one of two girls who eloped with student flyers from Selfridge Field and flew to Chicago. They crashed twice—first at a forced landing just before reaching Chicago, and second when they crashed into custody of the police.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875. Adv.

Wasted Evenings

Just a few evening hours each day we can call our own—yet how often we come home too tired to enjoy them!

Carelessly we blame it on hard work—yet other days we work harder and feel better. Why not face the truth squarely?

It is less a matter of over-working on our jobs than it is of over-burdening our digestive and eliminative systems. Nature is sounding her warning, that's all.

Doctors know this is true. They know, too, there is a sure, quick way to gain relief. For more than a generation they have advocated Pluto Mineral Water as the perfect combatant of constipation.

Pluto Mineral Water should never be confused with common laxatives. It is wholly different. It is not a drug. It is water. It actually water-washes the system.

Here is the reason: Its mineral content exceeds in percentage the mineral content of the blood. Hence it is not absorbed—not taken to the kidneys like ordinary water. Instead it passes intact through the intestines, flushing away the impurities as it goes.

That's why Pluto acts so promptly—30 minutes to two hours. That, too, is why it is harmless and soothing—never gripes—and has no habit-forming tendency.

For constipation there is nothing else so effective as Pluto Mineral Water. Thousands, too, follow the sensible plan of taking a little Pluto every morning on arising to keep regular, and ward off colds, influenza and other ills.

Dilute with hot water—directions on every bottle. Sold at all drug counters and fountains. Bottled at the Springs, French Lick, Indiana.

SCOUT NEWS

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

All members of Troop 41, Boy Scouts of America, are requested to be present and to register Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Scout Cabin. This will be the fifteenth consecutive year for both Troop 41 and its Scoutmaster, R. H. Kingsbury.

The new achievement round-up will also be explained at this meeting. All troop committeemen of Troop 41 are also asked to be present and to re-register, according to Scoutmaster R. H. Kingsbury.

She twisted her hands and begged them to believe her.

"I swear I never have touched a drop of the awful stuff. He gave me a swallow and I spit it out because it burned me."

Mike Flaherty turned to Neil stornily.

"Well, so, you big stiff?"

Neil was by this time a little more sober and frightened himself. Rosalie was surprised when he admitted so reluctantly that he had forced it upon her.

"A fine gentleman you are." The sergeant leaned over the desk and shook his fist threateningly at the cowering Neil. "Tak'n a good little motherless girl out and tryin' to get her tight. You ought to be beat to a pulp!"

Rosalie did not feel at all sorry for him. He had deceived her. A lie to her was a serious thing. She had known and adored her old playmate all her life. And now she felt she could never trust him again.

Flaherty took up his club and turned to her.

"I guess I'll be after puttin' this little fool in a cab, sergeant. What're you gonna do with the count here?"

"Put him in the cooler and sober him up. We'll talk business tomorrow."

"He—he's going to jail?" Rosalie stared at Neil as though he were a new species of animal.

"You—you're going to lock him up."

"I hope to tell you, sister, we sure are. Free bed and breakfast."

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, after the death of her mother, secures a position at the hosiery counter in a Philadelphia store through the kindness of Kenessa Du Barry, an actress. She is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, corner newsboy. Her first day at the store she wears a pair of cotton stockings because she finds a "run" in her old pair of silk ones. After the girls at the store make fun of her, Rosalie, in desperation, takes a pair of silk stockings from the stock, promising herself to make good for them pay day. In her confusion, leaving the store, she drops the hose, and is observed by Alberto Martino, the store detective, who does not detain her, but says he will see her later.

Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the store owner, notices Rosalie and chats with her daily. Rosalie has a boy friend, Neil McKinley, back home, but they quarreled when she left for the city.

Neil calls Rosalie unexpectedly one evening. They dine, and Neil drinks too much. Speeding down the street, they are stopped by a motor policeman, who arrests them. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

"Oh, where is he going to take us?" Rosalie grabbed Neil's arm in terror.

The officer answered for Neil. "To the police station, innocents and no back talk."

"Oh, but please, I didn't do anything," she pleaded, wildly. "Let me go home!"

They were under a light, and Officer Flaherty looked carefully at the young, terrified face. He was a tender hearted man at times.

"You been drinkin', too, Miss." He hesitated to take her along.

"Drinkin'?" She looked throughly angry with him. "How dare you?"

"Let me smell your breath." He leaned over. "The heck you ain't?"

Rosalie turned to Neil, sitting sulky and red eyed beside her, and she could have struck him.

"So THAT's what you gave me. That awful stuff that choked me. And you're drunk. Oh, you beast!"

She began to cry. The cop did not believe her. He thought she was drunk, too.

"This ain't no place to put on the big cryin' act, Miss," he told her, sarcastically, and guided them to the police station a block away.

Rosalie was weak with fright when they were led into the station house. Neil had not said a word.

It was nothing new to the desk sergeant. Several times every evening the same thing occurred. He fired questions.

"Drivin' while intoxicated, eh? And drinkin' from a flask right on a main street? Who d'ye think you are?"

When Rosalie gave her name and address Officer Flaherty looked at her sharply.

"How long you been with Mother Murphy?"

"Just a few weeks."

He went up to the sergeant and spoke a few words to him. Mike Flaherty had known Mother for years, and it was at his home she had spent the evening before. So that was the kid she had told them about. Well, he'd give her a little scare and send her home.

"How long you been drinkin' liquor?"

She twisted her hands and begged them to believe her.

"I swear I never have touched a drop of the awful stuff. He gave me a swallow and I spit it out because it burned me."

Mike Flaherty turned to Neil stornily.

"Well, so, you big stiff?"

Neil was by this time a little more sober and frightened himself. Rosalie was surprised when he admitted so reluctantly that he had forced it upon her.

"A fine gentleman you are." The sergeant leaned over the desk and shook his fist threateningly at the cowering Neil. "Tak'n a good little motherless girl out and tryin' to get her tight. You ought to be beat to a pulp!"

Rosalie did not feel at all sorry for him. He had deceived her. A lie to her was a serious thing. She had known and adored her old playmate all her life. And now she felt she could never trust him again.

Flaherty took up his club and turned to her.

"I guess I'll be after puttin' this little fool in a cab, sergeant. What're you gonna do with the count here?"

"Put him in the cooler and sober him up. We'll talk business tomorrow."

"He—he's going to jail?" Rosalie stared at Neil as though he were a new species of animal.

"You—you're going to lock him up."

"I hope to tell you, sister, we sure are. Free bed and breakfast."

You're lucky you ain't goin' to a cell, too." The sergeant looked very cold and forbidding.

She turned at the door and looked at Neil. He was standing, head down, sullen, and there was a half sneer on his face.

Outside Mike Flaherty swung his club to a passing taxi and it pulled up.

"Oh, please, I'll find my way home in a street car."

"You'll do nothin' of the kind. You got no business chasin' around nights—a girl pretty and with dimples like you got. If you's my Betty I'd take you home and fan yer britches for you."

Rosalie blushed and stood unhappily while he went on:

"I'm givin' you a chance—wan chance. If I ever catch yez out again with that little pug-nosed squirt I'll run yez in, sure as yer a foot high."

"I'm sure I thank you." Rosalie fought hard to smile up at him. Then she added, very low so the driver wouldn't hear. "He's really a nice boy. I've known him all my life. It's his mother—she didn't bring him up nice like my mother did me. We played together since we were babies."

It was given with such childish confidence that Mike Flaherty wanted to smile. He was touched, but he issued another parting warning.

"Mind. Don't let me catch you with any young flask totin' hoodlums again."

The Theater

The talkies have done more than revive the waning popularity of a lot of actors. They have revived the pie as an offensive weapon in the slap-stick comedy.

The slap-stick makers, almost their best mid-Victorian manner and hisses violently at the machinations of the villain in good old post-bellum style. A Cincinnati reviewer, however, found something a little mechanical about this exhibit of emotions. Instead of being spontaneous, it anticipated itself a little as if the audience had been told to hiss and applaud at certain spots and was doing its best. He wondered if it would have been as thoroughly executed if the audience had not been educated by the newspapers and advanced publicity to the fact that here was something exorcisingly funny and the proper reception was therefore thus and thus.

Lapino Lane, the veteran slapstick comedian, gave an example of this revival of the old gags in a comedy talkie at the Bijou Theater this week.

Lane used all the old stock gags and they went over in a big way, because of the sound effects—just Wonder at what or at whom Gwen Lee could be looking? Of maybe she's thinking about the time she was set three clubs when she could have made four spades.

as new as when they were first introduced by Chaplin years ago. Every time Lane fell to the floor the effect registered on the audience through sound as well as vision and the pie-throwing was some of the best ever seen in these parts.

There is evidence abroad now in Cincinnati that the dispute between the legitimate theater operators and the stage hands' union will be settled.

Three theaters, the Erlanger Grand, the Shubert and the Cox have been dark all season because of the argument. The stage hands want to be paid for straight time through the season while the theater owners want to reserve the right to pay them only when they work, which would eliminate the overhead when their theaters are dark.

In the meantime the Stuart Walker Players at the Taft Auditorium are furnishing Cincinnati their only legitimate stage entertainment, and many theatergoers are going to Dayton to see the current seasonal offerings.

John L. Horgan, manager of the Sinton Hotel has offered his services as a mediator in the dispute but arbitration has been reopened between the business agent of the union and the theater owners, and it is believed that his services will not be needed. The stage hands are understood to be ready to agree to the demands of the theater owners on condition that the electrician and one or two others be kept on duty full time.

The popularity with which melodrama has been received by "we moderns" may suggest an opportunity for the Little Theater Guild.

Christopher Morley and a group of intellectuals revived "The Black Crook" at a Hoboken Theater last year and the production went over big. Now the Civic Theater group in Cincinnati is presenting another melodrama of by-gone days, "The Drunkard."

The audience applauds vigorously at the triumphs of the hero in second term as commissioner, was fourth with 1,033 votes. David Cherry, furniture dealer, serving an appointive term on the commission and seeking his first elective term, ran fifth with 890. Cherry led the ticket at the August primary in a field of ten candidates. He was appointed on the commission about nine months ago to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John W. Prugh, who became state building and loan superintendent. Yoder was sixth with 605 votes.

The new Xenia municipal court over which Attorney Smith will preside as judge, was created by an act of the last legislature and starts to function next January 1. It replaces the present mayor's court and the two Xenia Twp. justice of the peace courts over which J. F. MacEwan and R. O. Copey have presided.

Attorney Smith was judge of Xenia's old police court during the eight years of its existence and until it was abolished as unconstitutional because the judge was appointed by commission and not elected as the law requires.

Unofficial returns from all of Greene County's forty-eight precincts disclosed the state tax amendment received a majority of more than 400 votes in this county. The vote was: yes, 3,341; no, 2,888.

The Xenia Twp. board of education also had a complete new deal in the only other contest of importance when two of the three members whose terms expired were defeated for re-election. New members of the township school board are: Frank A. Wolf, who led the ticket with 244 votes; Edna C. Bull, who ran second with 218 votes; and D. T. Harner, third with 208 votes.

Defeated board members who sought re-election are: Frank Weaver, who polled 185 votes, and Harry Hagler, 167 votes; J. B. Harner was sixth with 137. C. E. Bone, another board member whose term expired, did not seek re-election.

No contests existed for the Greene County and Xenia city boards of education and Xenia Twp. board of trustees. J. D. Adair and J. J. Stout, members whose terms expire this year on the city school board, were re-elected without opposition, as were W. B. Bryson, Clifton Pike; A. L. Fisher, Bowersville, and J. E. Hastings, Cedarville, members of the county board.

Ward Grant, John C. Short and Graham Bryson had no opposition for re-election as Xenia Twp. trustees. R. E. Bryson was unopposed for re-election as clerk of the board.

With clear weather prevailing, the total vote cast in Xenia city was heavier than had been expected in view of advance indications of apparent apathy on the part of the electorate. The total vote recorded in the county, however, on the state tax amendment, the only state-wide issue which came before the voters, did not measure up to the eligible vote in this county by about 2,000.

HERE'S ONE CORNER OF TRIANGLE

FRED FLYNN

FRED FLYNN looks more like a popular matinee idol in the picture above than he does the devilish villain whose machinations furnish much of the heavy drama in "Tea for Three," the opening vehicle of the Little Theater Guild to be presented at City Hall Theater Friday night.

The belief must obtain that Flynn is an engaging and altogether pleasant and entertaining villain, and not one of the mustachioed deep-dyed sinners of the melodrama and the comic pages. He has an ample part full of lively lines and many intriguing situations as one of the three principal roles in the piece.

Marcus McCallister, the young barrister and Miss Margaret Little, whose engaging personality inspires these performers to their best efforts throughout, form the balance of the principals. Miss Helen Spahr and Bob Ellis are working their way up from the bottom in Guild productions by carrying in the visitors' cards, serving the caviar and doing these other incidental details that fall to the minor parts. Guild membership tickets are good for admission.

LINER AGROUND ON WAY TO HONG KONG

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The liner President Taft went aground on Pootung Point while enroute to Hong Kong, a Central News dispatch received from Shanghai stated today.

The liner grounded when the captain attempted to avoid a sunken wreck in the vicinity of the accident.

The vessel is in no danger, the dispatch stated. It is expected it will be refloated on the next flood tide.

DEATH STRETCH ON SOUTH CHARLESTON PIKE IS REPORTED

LONDON, O., Nov. 6.—Another highway "death stretch" for Madison County is fast being established by allegedly careless motorists on the London-South Charleston Pike, west of this city, which is at present the detour road for the National Highway.

The first "death stretch" in the county, which was officially named that in a grand jury report, exists on the National Pike just north of here and west of Summerford.

The latter stretch, which is only two miles in length, has been the scene of between forty and fifty accidents in the past ten years. Hundreds have been injured.

The new "death stretch" is ten miles in length, extending from London to South Charleston. Ten machines were seriously wrecked and approximately thirty others were "ditched" along the stretch in one evening. Barely a day passes that from one to ten automobiles are not wrecked. Fatalities, however, have been few.

DEMOCRATS GLAD AS RETURNS INDICATE SUCCESS IN VOTING

ber could be consolidated and held. Apparently, so far as Virginia is concerned, they cannot be, and the result is of more than passing significance to North Carolina, Texas, and Florida, the other states of the old solid south which bolted Smith and went Republican last year.

"The Virginia election," said J. J. Shouse, acting chairman of the Democratic national committee, "is the culmination of a series of political episodes that all point to the same thing—restoration of Democratic harmony."

"It began with the choosing of a Democrat from the third congressional district of Kentucky, which had elected a Republican with Hoover last year; the victory of Ramsey, the regular Democrat, over his Hooverite adversary in the Atlanta district in Georgia, which also went Republican in the national election; the election of Kvale, with Democratic endorsement, in Minnesota; and the phenomenal vote amassed by Hoidale, a Democrat, in Walter Newton's Minneapolis district. They all show which way the political wind is blowing."

"The Virginians are to be congratulated that they refused to be swayed by appeals to their prejudices and on their retention of a decent political perspective."

"The Republicans made the most of their opportunity" in Virginia. Money was poured into Virginia in even greater volume than during the campaign which gave Virginia's vote to Hoover. Their effort has failed."

Republican leaders, while impressed by the Virginia result, had little to say other than that local and not national considerations governed the result.

MAYOR WALKER WINS SMASHING VICTORY AT NEW YORK POLLS

Waterman, Republican-fusion candidate by 40,123.

Major La Guardia conceded defeat less than three hours after the polls closed, and sent a congratulatory telegram to Walker.

"I am completely satisfied with the result," smilingly declared Walker. "The vote is very emphatic. The unprecedented plurality is obviously an expression of approval by the people of the present administration."

Becoming serious, he added: "It is also an indication of the unwillingness of the people to be influenced by malicious, slanderous or libelous observations."

Mayor Walker himself did not get home until the wee hours this morning. After making two speeches over the radio last night and paying a visit to Tammany Hall, he went to his main headquarters in the Times Square district where he was accorded an enthusiastic reception by more than 1,000 men and women who had waited for hours for his appearance. They had been dancing, meanwhile, to the music of a swanky band.

"Jimmy" was kissed by a score of women as he pushed his way into headquarters through a lane of outstretched hands. He finally reached his wife, who had been patiently waiting. He gave Mrs. Walker two kisses and a hug.

"I'm delighted—it's marvelous," Mrs. Walker said to International News Service in commenting on the result. "It was just what I expected. Of course I'm happy—for my husband's sake, more than anything else."

Despite the large number of ballots cast, the vote was counted quickly because voting machines were in use throughout the city for the first time.

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak."

My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicine that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. lates in the afternoon. The situation caused Keyes Winter, manager of the Republican campaign, to appeal to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt to send a detail of state police to quell the disturbance. He charged that La Guardia supporters were manhandled in districts where the voters are predominantly of Italian extraction.

Several men were beaten. One voter in the Bronx sustained a fracture of the skull.

Charges of intimidation were vigorously denied by Tammany Hall leaders.

It is there, undoubtedly... a "sparkle" of spicier aroma, an extra touch of flavor, a certain added "character," unmistakably Chesterfield's own.

No one word describes it—but only the most inexperienced smoker could fail to mark it. Between other cigarettes and Chesterfield, there is the clear-cut difference between just something to smoke and the cigarette that puts—
